WHAT THE COUNCIL IS DOING.

Warden in opening the Council with prayer and singing the National Anthem.

Before the usual business of the council was taken up a deputation from the Patriotic Fund Committee appeared before the Council to urge the council to pass a resolution urging the 1917 council to continue the County's contribution to the fund. Letters were read by the Township of Richmond to close certain roads was read, put through its various stages and passed.

Clerk read report of orders on Treasurer given by Warden and Clerk

TOWN AFFAIRS

To the Editor of the Napanee Express:
RE DISPOSAL WORKS.

Sir:—Upon the suggestion of members of the Town Council, and owing to difficulties in connection with the West street sewer, I requested Dr. Maloney of Cornwall, (the medical health officer for Eastern Ontario) to come to Napanee and investigate. On Tuesday by arrangement Dr. Maloney, Mr. Delaporte the expert sanitation Engineer for the Ontario Government, G. Wright, Town Engineer, from Kingston, the local board of Health and Chairman of streets and town property Committees, made a thorough investigation of this whole matter. Nothing was found wrong at the disposal plant but an insufficient cleaning of the sludge well, which was owing to defective pump. This is being remedied.

The main trouble seems to have been in the way refuse from the Canning factory, had accumulated in the drain owing to want of a screen at the Canning factory and an insufficient supply of water, a screen has been put in, and ample water is now supplied, but other changes may be required when the Government Engineer makes his full report and the public are assured that the matter has been taken care of by the council.

THE CANADIAN NORTHERN SUBWAY.

The Railway Commission of the Dominion of Canada, have arranged to hold a special session in the Town Hall here on Wednesday, Dec. 6th, 1916, to consider this application for a subway on the Belleville road and it is hoped that this subway will be ordered and at little or no expense to the town of Napanee, compared with maintaining gates at the town's expense, as this crossing is within the corporation of limits.

EASTERN ONTARIO DAIRYMAN'S CONVENTION.

This promises to be a great success during first week of January and the Armoury has been secured for the occasion.

lecture as one of the most widely travelled women in America, addressed a crowded meeting of the Historical Society in their hall last Friday evening. The lecturer showed a wide acquaintance with the history and life of the European, discoursed with equal ease on the history, geography, religion and politics of Russia, Germany, Bulgaria and Turkey. She traced for us the origin and growth of the Russian church, pointed out the difference between the Latin and the Greek churches both in respect to polity and creed. The lecturer now concentrated on Russia, and at the outset warned her hearers to guard against the views of Russia as held by the average Canadian, a view based on the error of judging that country entirely by its aristocracy, rather than by the peasant class, which constitute the great majority of the population. She told of the struggle for democracy in the realm and the reluctance with which the Czar consented to the formation of the Duma, and the restricted privileges it enjoyed. Touching briefly on the present shake-up in that body, and the growth of its share in the responsibility of government since the outbreak of the war, she predicted for it a great future, a more sympathetic treatment of the Poles and Jews and the common peasant in the years to come. By means of well-chosen pictures the lecturer showed some of the most famous scenes in the warring nations, with particular emphasis on Constantinople. The address throughout was scholarly and pleasantly delivered and the speaker showed herself master of her subject. The average mind is not however, able to retain such a mass of material, and it might have been better had the lecturer concentrated on one or two points and brought them home to her audience with all the wonderful force of her personality and the storehouse of facts which she so readily commanded.

Where local officials showed want of appreciation of the importance of the newspapers, he continued, this would prove without significance, as all local authorities could be controlled by uniform instructions from the War Office.

There was a heavy trade on a very active market, with exceptionally wide ranges. Winnipeg opened too strong and broke sharply on peace talk and heavy liquidation, which started with country orders and soon became general. Not until wheat had broken 9c from the morning did the situation change. Then short covering caused the prices to recover 6c. General news was bearish, with an increased visible supply.

In the cash market, the first three grades of wheat went thru on the option. Flour, five and six were taken for eastern demand, but trade was generally light.

FOOD CRISIS ACUTE.

Conditions in the Central Empires Become Desperate.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The Daily Mail makes a feature story of what it describes as highly authentic information that the food situation in both Germany and Austria-Hungary is more desperate than had hitherto been generally believed. This information is based on what is claimed to be the necessity of the American officials in both countries to send urgent demands home for supplies of food. The food supplies, it is said, are now arriving and are being placed in depots under the vigilant supervision of American officials.

The newspaper says its informant declares that the Americans in the past few weeks have reported to Washington that their ration tickets are useless, as there is little or no food to ration the nation, and that the action of the American Government in hastening supplies of food to them is only interpreted in the light of showing that the American embassies and consulates now regard the food situation in Austria and Germany with the greatest possible anxiety.

In an editorial dealing with this story, The Daily Mail says it explains the "peace intrigues which the Germans are fomenting in the United States and elsewhere," and urges the British Government to exert every possible pressure, especially the tightening of the blockade, to prevent Germany from taking advantage of the seizure of the corn lands of Roumania.

PICKED TROOPS BEATEN.

Serbians Score Brilliant Victory Over the Tontons.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—An important strategical success has been won by the Serbians and French in the capture of Hill 1950, north-east of Monastir, and its retention against repeated counter-assault, according to the official Serbian communication issued at Salonica Monday.

The attack was led by French zouaves, who were co-operating with the Serbians. It consisted of a series of partial onsets, and it led to the carrying of this hill, which is of great strategic importance, by assault. The position was defended by picked German troops, the Chasseurs of the Guard, with orders to hold out at all costs. When the Germans were ousted by the brilliant tactics of the Allies, the Germans brought up more troops and they launched several counter-attacks to regain the

GERMANS AT ALT RIVER

Roumanians Admit That Their Troops Have Retired.

Situation for King Ferdinand's Country Grows More Serious, the Teutons Being Within Fifty Miles of Bucharest—Czar Nicholas Will Hold Conference With Roumanian Monarch.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—In Roumania the Germans have reached the line of the Alt River, and they hold it in its entirety. Von Mackensen is prosecuting his advance from the Danube, and he has occupied Alexandria in the River Vede sector. The Roumanians admit that their troops have retired from the Alt and from the Topolog River, a little towards the east. It is said that their retirement is for a distance of 15 miles from the Alt. The Germans Monday night claimed nothing more than that they were in possession of the whole line of the Alt.

According to a Sofia despatch to a Berlin paper Emperor Nicholas of Russia has arrived at Kiev on his way to the Roumanian frontier in order to confer with the King of Roumania.

Petrograd admits that the Germans have reached the River Vede, a parallel stream to the Alt, and they have occupied positions between Ruchi de Vede and Valeni.

The Roumanian official communication to a large extent corroborates this news by reporting an engagement with an enemy column advancing towards Roshiori de Vede on the railway a little north of Alexandria. Thus the central forces are now within 50 miles of Bucharest, which is threatened from the west, north, and south.

The German communique also brings the interesting news that Field Marshal von Mackensen is personally commanding the movement across the Danube. There is no indication yet, however, as to what strength he has been able to put into this sector, but his movement seems to confirm the impression previously formed that his latest withdrawal into Dobrudja was voluntary in order to assemble forces for the Danube crossing. Neither is anything definite known as to whether Gen. von Falkenhayn has transferred any considerable portion of the forces lately engaged in forcing the Red Tower and other Transylvanian passes to the operations through Vulcan Pass. Should Roumania be driven to de-

Output of Potatoes Reduced.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The Board of Agriculture estimates the potato crop of England and Wales for the current year, with a decreased acreage of 35,000 acres, as 350,000 tons less than in 1915. It is, however, only 100,000 tons less than the ten years' average.

at all costs. When the Germans were ousted by the brilliant tactics of the Allies, the Germans brought up more troops and they launched several counter-attacks to regain the position. No consideration for the losses incurred was shown by the Germans, but their losses were large and they were beaten.

On the allied left wing Italian troops are continuing their advance into the mountainous region of Di-nove, four miles north-west of Mon-astir. In the centre on the Cerna front, a Bulgarian counter-attack upon the Serbian positions, launched Sunday night, was repulsed with great losses to the enemy.

Raiders Driven Off.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—A raid by six German torpedo-boat destroyers on the English coast, which took place on Thursday night, was announced in an official statement Sunday. The raid was ineffective, according to the statement, which declares that the six German destroyers participating in it steamed away quickly after firing a dozen rounds, one shell striking a small vessel, but causing little damage and no injury to the crew.

Apparently the raiders were operating in the vicinity of Ramsgate, on the coast about fifteen miles north of Dover. The general announcement reads:

"Six German destroyers during the night of Thursday attempted to approach the north end of the Downs, but were seen by a patrol vessel. The enemy fired about twelve rounds and quickly steamed off at once. One shell hit a drifter without injuring any of the crew and only damaging her upper works. No shells fell anywhere near the open town of Ram-gate."

Admits Heavy Losses.

ZURICH, Nov. 28.—Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, is quoted in The Muencher Neueste Nachrichten as describing the fighting on the Somme as most sanguinary and admitting that Germany's losses there have been very heavy.

"We must be prepared for other attacks even more serious than those resisted heretofore," said the Prince.
"It is always an error to underrate your enemy. I have no means of knowing how long these attacks will continue, but you may rest assured we will not again be taken by surprise."

Mr. McMaster's Views.

On the eve of the re-opening of the British Parliament, the Weekly Despatch put to several of the members the question: "What ought to be done this session?" Among the answers published is the excellent one given by Mr. Donald MacMaster, the Canadian K.C. who sits for the Chertsey Division of Surrey. It is as follows:

(1) Apply conscription to every part of the United Kingdom.

(2) Provide that our sailors, soldiers, and munition workers shall have the opportunity to vote at the next election.

(3) Provide that the disabled sailors and soldiers shall be shepherded, here and in our great Dominions, and given the opportunity to resume civil life within the Empire.

(4) Tell the Government that war is war—that the full power of our fleet must be asserted in stopping imports into Germany, directly or indirectly; that Roumania must be backed up, and that there must be no more nonsense with Greece.

siderable portion of the forces lately engaged in forcing the Red Tower and other Transylvanian passes to the operations through Vulcan Pass.

Should Roumania be driven to defend the line running north and south from the mountains between Red Tower and Toerzburg Passes to the Danube, in order to protect Bucharest, military critics here consider that her position would be extremely critical. It is hoped, however, that Russia has been able to send sufficient reinforcements to relieve Roumania of the necessity of devoting large forces to the defense of her northern and Dobrudja frontiers, and that she will have sufficiently strong forces to carry on an effective fight in the Wallachian plain.

Aliens Want Votes.

KITCHENER, Nov. 28.—At the general sessions of the peace on December 12th 204 applications for naturalization will be submitted to Senior Judge Hanning, 197 of which are made by aliens of enemy birth.
Of this number 61 came from Germany, many of whom have resided in this city for years, and have exercised their franchise; 24 from Austria, nine from Bulgaria, three from Turkey. The other applicants originate from Russia, the United States, and Belgium.

Representatives of the Citizens' League, which has been organized to have the former name of this city restored after the next municipal elections, have canvassed the aliens who are so designated in this year's voters' lists with a view to securing the franchise for them to exercise in the coming election.

soldiers missing after the opening of

was decimated, discloses that none of these Newfoundlanders are prisoners

Another Air Raid on England.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Another air raid of the north-eastern coast of England took place Monday night.
The official statement says:

"Hostile airships crossed the north-eastern coast Monday night.
Bombs, it is reported, have been dropped in several places in the northern counties, but no reports of casualties or damage have yet been received."

French Obtain Freedom.

PARIS, Nov. 28.—Twenty thousand French civilians, mostly old men, women, and children, from the occupied districts of France, are about to be sent to France from Germany. Trains, each carrying 500 persons, will effect the transportation to Switzerland, en route to this country before Christmas. This is in accordance with an agreement between France and Germany for the exchange of civilian prisoners.

HOLY PLACES ARE OPEN.

Pilgrimages to Mecca Can Now Be Safely Undertaken.

In 1915 the Entente governments declared themselves unable to authorize the pilgrimage to Mecca of Muhammadans from their possessions in view of the treatment meted out to Algerian pilgrims in 1914, despite the previous assurances of the Turkish Government. Now, however, that the Grand Shereef of Mecca has freed the holy places of Islam, the French Government has decided that it could not give better proof of its solicitude for the pilgrims, and its recognition of the difficulties of the journey, the government has chartered a packet-boat belonging to one of the great French lines to convey a contingent of pilgrims from Port Said to Jeddah, and is making arrangements for the continuation of its journey on land. The shortage of shipping and other difficulties have not made it possible for the government to extend this hospitality to a larger number of travelers, but the contingent will number more than 650 pilgrims, representing all classes of Muhammadan society, especially that of the notables, and made up of equal groups from the three great French colonies in northern Africa, Algeria, Tunis, and Morocco.

At the same time the French Government is sending a mission to the Grand Shereef for the purpose of expressing to him its satisfaction with the way in which he has broken the Turkish yoke, and freed the holy places. The delegates, which comprise representatives of Algeria, Tunis, Morocco, and French West Africa, and who are all Muhammadans, are also to offer presents to the Grand Shereef in the name of the French Government.

Musical Energy in Tons.

A simple air played on the violoncello calls for a total expenditure of energy equal to two and three-quarter pounds per note or more than four tons of energy for the single selection, notes The Popular Science Monthly for October. This statement is vouched for by Professor Poffenberger of Columbia University, who made some experiments in his laboratory with the aid of the Dutch cellist, Michael Penha.

A special apparatus is necessary to conduct the tests. Against the surface of a revolving carbon cylinder is suspended a chalked point which is actuated by a slender wire attached to the musician's finger. At each pressure the tension vibrates along the communicating connection and records the energy expended.

At a recent test Michael Penha at times raised the point to a distance equaling three pounds in weight, that being the record of the forefinger. The pressure alone required to produce the characteristically luscious tones of a simple Bach aria averaged two and three-quarter pounds per note. The total energy expended amounted to 9,414 pounds, or more than four tons.

This same amount of energy would be sufficient to carry a laborer through his entire day's work. Yet it took but five minutes for the artist to exert the same amount of force.

DEATH BY BOILING

The Way Poisoners Fared In the Old Days In England.

TORTURE FOR MINOR CRIMES.

Mutilation Used to Be a Favorite Form of Punishment, and the Slanderer's Tongue Was Plucked Out—The Penalty For High Treason.

In these merciful days, when a man who publishes a libel on the king escapes with a few months' imprisonment, it seems scarcely credible that as late as 1870 the punishment ordained by the law for high treason was that the offender should be drawn on a hurdle to the place of execution and there should be hanged by the neck until he was dead; that then his head should be severed from his body, that his body be divided into four quarters and that his head and quarters be at the disposal of the crown.

And this was by no means the worst fate that might befall a criminal in the so called "good old days," as one John Rouse, a cook of Henry VIII's day, found to his cost. Rouse was convicted of the heinous crime of putting poison in the broth intended for the family of no less reverend a personage than the bishop of Rochester. For such a crime hanging, drawing and quartering was too merciful a punishment. "Something lingering, with boiling oil," or at least water, was decided to be the punishment that best fitted the crime, and with this object a special act of parliament was passed ordaining boiling alive as the punishment for this felony. John Rouse expiated his sins in a cauldron of hot water, and a few years later, in 1542, one Margaret Davy met the same fate at Smithfield.

So gravely was the crime of poisoning regarded in these days of old that, it is recorded, a Scotsman, one Thomas Belle, and his son were banished for life for administering poison to a couple of noisy hens belonging to a neighbor.

These were indeed days when the man of violent temper or criminal tendencies must operate warily. If by any evil chance he came to blows and drew blood within the precincts of the king's palace he was inevitably condemned to lose his right hand, and a statute of Henry VIII. regulated the whole gressome ceremony, with all its functionaries, from the surgeon who was to amputate the offending member, to the individual who used the searing irons, the yeoman of the scullery who made the irons red hot at his fire and the sergeant of the cellar who was provided "with a pot of red wine to give the same party after his hand is so stricken off and the stump seared."

Mutilation was a favorite form of punishment in those good old days, following, no doubt, the Scriptural penalty, "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth." Thus the slanderer's tongue was pulled out, so that he could at least utter slander no more, and he who destroyed the sight of a one-eyed man lost both his own eyes.

CARLYLE AND HIS WIFE.

The Lady Was Jealous of His Social and Literary Success.

It is certain that the Carlyles were an ill-assorted couple. She considered from the beginning that to marry him was an act of condescension on her part. The daughter of a country doctor of Haddington had descended from the skies, like Diana to Endymion, to marry the son of a stonemason. But he loved her and was happy in his love.

Not so she. Jealous of him as she was—furiously jealous—not as a lover, for there she knew she was safe. But she could not bear to think that if she were famous it was as his wife, whereas she, knowing herself to be brilliant, would fain have had him to be known as the husband of that wonderful Mrs. Carlyle. It was his success, social and literary, that she resented. It irked her to be in the second place, and she could not forgive it.

There was something else of which the lady was jealous, and that was the agony of concentration which her husband's work meant for him. At moments here "saeva indignatio" against "that Carlyle," as she would contemptuously call him, passed all bounds.

One day my aunt went to call upon her and found her in one of her tantrums.

"What was the matter?" she asked.

"Oh, my dear, it's just that Carlyle! Would you believe it, I have had a headache for three days and he's only just found it out. 'I'm afraid you're not quite well, my dear,' he said, and all the time he has been working, working! I just threw a teacup at his head."—Lord Redesdale's Recollections.

Provide Girls for Farms.

Some important changes and amendments have been made by the Department of Education for the school year of 1916-17. The regulations governing the issuing of certificates to young men of the High and Continuation schools and Collegiates who enlist as they now stand, will permit the student to write upon his examination before Easter, and get his certificate for admission to the Normal schools or Faculty of Education without completing the school year. Under the former system, where the examination was not held, the student had to depend upon the recommendation of the principal or complete his year at special classes after his term of service in the army expired. Such an arrangement will still apply to students who enlist before the Easter examination.

The new regulations permit High School Entrance Boards to free from examination and grant certificates to boys and girls preparing in Forms IV. and V. of the Public or Separate schools for junior graduation diplomas or junior High school entrance certificates. In the same way, certificates will be granted to pupils of the fifth form for senior graduation diplomas, senior High school entrance, and entrance to the Model schools, or in the High and Continuation schools for entrance to the Model and Normal schools or Faculty of Education.

The whole reason for these conditions is that school girls may be allowed time to help on the farm, and in this way relieve, to some extent, the pressure of work caused by the

The constructions are intended particularly for lumber export and the steel vessels for general use. Of the wooden vessel ada West Coast Navigation has contracted for eight, though none of these is yet ed, four of them have already chartered. The first, it is will be ready in January from that month forward month will be delivered yards. Of the steel vessel construction one is for trade and the other two for freight purposes. Discussing the situation lumbermen's standpoint The Lumberman says:

"In the very near future, lumber exporters of this Province have at their command eight auxiliary power wooden sailing vessels of good carrying capacity—total of a merchant fleet which is to number at least twenty vessels within the next twelve months. No longer will our men be entirely at the mercy of foreign charterers, and British Columbia forest products, shipped in Columbia bottoms, may earn the recognition that hitherto been denied them. This is being marketed as America. These desirable things have been made possible as a result of the passage of the British shipping bill, under the provisions of which the builders are advanced five per cent. of the cost of construction, to be paid back within five years, while each vessel in accordance with the act is to receive an annual subsidy of ten to exceed the sum of five tons, if same be necessary."

Trial Marriages Proper.

Trial marriages are quite the thing in the Far North, according to George H. Wilkins, of London, member of the Canadian Government Arctic expedition, who has reached Chicago laden with films and trophies of all sorts from the little known land about Coronation Gulf.

"The blond Eskimos, as they are called, are very interesting people," he says. "They have no regular marriage ceremony; polygamy is prevalent, and trial marriages everywhere are recognized as legitimate.

"The girls are a bit chunky for our ideals, but by no means without fascination. Once one grows accustomed to their physical type he learns to admire them, particularly for their kindness and loyalty. Most of the girls get married between the ages of 15 and 16. They pick a man they want, and if he does not ask them they ask him to marry. If there is trouble she returns to her parents, or she need not do so.

"The man may take a second wife, or several if he wishes, and all the women live together in harmony."

Control Coal Industry.

The Government is proposing to take over control of the coal industry of Great Britain in the near future, the main purpose of the scheme of nationalization being to give a certain power of control over the neutral shipping which coals at British ports. Coal owners will be allowed to take their present profits if the scheme goes through, but the Government will control the distribution of coal for home consumption, for export, and for shipping.

The plan is that if the Government owns the coal it will be in a position to stipulate the use the customer shall make of it, and to require him to call for his return cargo at specified ports. In that way it is believed the whole of the shipping in British ports may be organized and directed.

Quebec is Prospering.

The recent tour of the Province of Quebec by a representative delegation of business men from Ontario reveals the fact that Quebec, probably more than any other portion of the Dominion, is reaping a marvelous measure of prosperity and industrial advantage through the present war period. Directly through contracts for munitions of war, and indirectly through the increased demands for such products as pulpwood and paper, lumber, cotton, and woollen goods and asbestos, Quebec has been immensely enriched. The labor problem, which has been so acute in other parts of the country, does not apply to any great extent in this Province; and with the exception of the asbestos miners in Thetford there have been no strikes or other adverse conditions to interfere with the progress of industry.

The only cloud in the sky of commercial Quebec is the high cost of foodstuffs, which has made comfortable living amongst the industrial classes, especially in Montreal and the other larger centres of the Province, a serious and difficult problem. But with the increased trade which has come to Quebec, much of it through the ordinary commercial channels as well as from the war, the general basis of wages and the standard of living also have tended to advance to higher levels.

for a fool." Thus the slanderer's tongue was pulled out, so that he could at least utter slander no more, and he who destroyed the sight of a one eyed man lost both his own eyes.

By the Coventry act in the time of Charles II. any person who should maliciously put out the eye, slit the nose or disable any limb of another with intent to maim or disfigure him was to pay for the wrong with his life. By another act the man who fought with weapons in a church had one of his ears cut off. If he had already lost both ears, as many a malefactor had, he was branded in the cheek with the letter "F."

By an act of Queen Elizabeth's reign the forger was condemned to stand in the pillory, to have his ears cut off by the common hangman, his nostrils slit up and seared and to be imprisoned for life, and by a statute of James I. an unfortunate bankrupt was nailed by an ear to the pillory for two hours, and then his ear was cut off.

If an enterprising farmer were foolish enough to send any of his live sheep out of the country he paid a terrible price for his rashness, for his goods were forfeited, he was sent to jail for twelve months, and on recovering his liberty his left hand was cut off in a public market and nailed up there as a warning against the danger of illicit exports. If he offended a second time he paid for his daring with his life. If he set covetous eyes on a neighbor's sheep and annexed one of them he was unceremoniously hanged by the neck until he was dead. Indeed, thousands of unfortunates paid with their lives for thefts much more insignificant.

Burning alive was, of course, a common punishment for witchcraft for many a century, down to a couple of hundred years ago, and many of the victims who were accused of "selling their souls to the devil" were children under ten years of age.

In 1726 Edward Burnworth, a highwayman, refusing to plead, was loaded with boards and weights. For more than an hour he bore a mass of metal weighing nearly four hundredweight, when human flesh could bear the agony no more, and he prayed to be put to the bar again. He pleaded "Not guilty," but was nevertheless found guilty and ended his days on the scaffold. This cruel punishment survived to George III.'s time.—London Tit-Bits.

Noblewoman Can't Mend Roads.

After nearly four months of heavy farm work Lady Mabel Smith of London, sister of Lord Fitzwilliam, applied to the Wortley rural council for a position as a road laborer. The council has refused to give her a job, saying the work is too hard for a woman.

A Clean Record.

"What makes Jinks so proud of his ancestors? I never heard any of them did anything."

"That's exactly the point. So many persons' ancestors did do things which got them into trouble with the police."

tions is that school girls may be allowed time to help on the farm, and in this way relieve, to some extent, the pressure of work caused by the enlistment of the men. The main requirement is that the pupil, before securing a certificate in the new way, must show that he or she has been employed on a farm in Ontario during the summer.

A Daring Canadian Airman.

Lieut. Ernest Hicks, who has just received the Military Cross, has done remarkable things. He brought down two enemy machines and drove back over the lines three others. On one occasion he came down to 800 feet and bombed trains. Lieut. Hicks is a Canadian, and it is barely four months since he made his first flight. He crossed to England with the Princess Patricia's Regiment, and was wounded in the Ypres fighting. When he recovered he was transferred to the Flying Corps, and the London correspondent of The Manchester Guardian tells us of his latest experience. About 20 miles behind the German lines he engaged two enemy machines, and in the worry he "forgot Archie" and did not dodge, and a big piece of shrapnel pierced his tank and the exhaust caught fire. He hustled home as hard as he could, expecting every moment his machine would go "biff" and his end would come. But he held on, although partly blinded, and by great luck got a glimpse of a wood he knew, and made a lucky landing, tearing his burning clothes from him. There was tremendous luck in this escape, but what iron nerve and spirit of steel to have carried on and won through! Many of our airmen have been in such inconceivable straits as these and carried on. "After the war," says The Guardian, "no one will have the foolishness to go to Troy or Agincourt of Dumas' novels when they want to speak of heroes."

In Dr. Johnson's Seat.

An American tourist visiting the famous old Fleet street inn, the Cheshire Cheese, sat down in what is reputed to be Dr. Johnson's chair, "Do you know," said the cicerone, impressively, "that you are now sitting in Dr. Johnson's chair?" "I'm sorry," said the American, and he got up.

Getting More Petrol.

Petrol allowances on a much more generous scale are to be granted to private motorists and to motorcyclists in England. The new regulations permit all owners of private cars to have a minimum of 16 gallons a month for the six months November to April on making application for that quantity.

Bleach for White Wool.

When you begin looking over the supply of winter clothing don't get discouraged if the white woollen garments have become yellow. A weak solution of hydrogen peroxide with borax added is a good bleaching agent for white wool. Make the solution as follows: Add one part hydrogen peroxide to ten parts of water and use a tablespoonful of borax to each gallon of water.

five years, while each vessel in accordance with the act an annual subsidy for ten years to exceed the sum of five dollars, if same be necessary the annual earnings of the vessel to fifteen per cent. on the total.

"The need of a British fleet had long been recognized very frequently advocated, and early in 1914 before the Government an attentive ear to the ships. At that time the lunatic manufacturers of the Province, experiencing difficulty in keeping plants running—a financial agency had developed and the demand for lumber had increased badly. Then came the war, blighting effect on the export of the Province, not because of the Canadian west in demand, but because there were no "bottoms" available to load. Tonnage was at a premium, and the shipping in the shape of a ship under charter at large in America nothing to carry the shore trade of the Province, obtainable except at such prices as to "eat up" all the profits of the shipper. In other words, lucky individuals with the money were making everything the make, and the business of Columbia was becoming stagnant.

Enlistment Creeps Up.

Enlistments for the first week of October totaled 3,160, a decrease of 124 over the fortnight. Recruiting on the rate of about 6,000 per month, but it is hoped that with the release of a considerable number of men now engaged in agricultural or other outwork will again stimulate enlistments. Total enlistments since the outbreak of war are now placed at 31,000. To gauge the present fighting force there must be deducted from this figure at least twenty per cent. for the front, desertions, and other reasons for physical unfitness.

By military districts the figures for the period from 1st to 15th are as follows: (London), 314; No. 2 (Kent), 447; No. 3 (Kingston), 351; (Montreal), 672; No. 5 (Quebec), 130; No. 6 (Maritime Provinces), 336; No. 10 (Manitoba and Saskatchewan), 425; No. 11 (British Columbia), 286; No. 13 (Alberta), 286.

Architects Held Up.

It is estimated that owing to war Toronto architects have plans for new construction amounting to approximately 1,000,000. Contractors are in the great majority of the work will be resumed soon as a suitable opportunity. This may not be until the end of the war, but many local people believe conditions will warrant the start of many of these new enterprises in the near future.

GREAT DEMAND.

Columbia's Sailing Schooners
at Nearing Completion.

It is well known that tonnage has become scarce, and it is no longer possible to learn of ships earning as much as they did from one year's work.

In the past two years there has been no limit to the rates charged for cases they are ten times as many as those which obtained at the end of the war. Of course unusual circumstances stimulate shipbuilding materially. But Canadians are at some disadvantage because materials are very hard to get to the plants that could turn building parts are engaged in making of munitions. Government persuasion and the impetus from a loyal desire to do as much as possible to keep the boys at home well supplied with ammunition have resulted in a concentrated effort for that purpose.
Such normal requirements of the peaceful mariner are somewhat neglected. Deficiencies, however, there are as to the vessels under construction.

In British Columbia it is well known that there are at least three vessels either in course of construction or projected, and of steel. The wooden vessels are intended more particularly for lumber export purposes.
Steel vessels for general tonnage the wooden vessels the Canadian Coast Navigation Company has ordered for eight, and although one of these is yet completed, the others have already been ordered. The first, it is expected, will be ready in January next, and in a month forward one each will be delivered by the end of the steel vessels under construction one is for the Japan line, the other two for general purposes. When the wooden vessels which have a lumber capacity of 500,000 feet each, commence sailings it will result in great developments in the lumber trade at the coast. The British Columbia have been working under some real disadvantages, one of the chief being the delay in every export shipment the goods had to be done in San Francisco at a cost higher than from the United States.

Considering the situation from the Canadian standpoint The Western Canadian says:

It is very near future the lumber trade of this Province will be in the command of eight or nine powerful wooden schooners of great capacity—the nucleus of a fleet which is expected to be at least twenty-five vessels in the next twelve or fifteen months. No longer will our lumber trade be at the mercy of foreign shippers, and British Columbian products, shipped in British bottoms, may in time receive recognition that has heretofore been denied them through being classed as American lumber.
Desirable things have been possible as a result of the passing of the British Columbia bill, under the terms of which builders are advanced fifty-per cent of the cost of construction paid back with interest in advance, while each vessel operated in accordance with the act will earn a subsidy for ten years, not less than the sum of five dollars per tonnage. It will be necessary to bring

The Brand of a Criminal

It Was Assumed Voluntarily
by a Society Girl

By F. A. MITCHEL

Miss Wetmore, a middle aged spinster, was much interested in sociology.
She was especially given to helping persons who had been convicted of crime, served their term in prison and been discharged. Her niece, Madge Ellison, a gay girl of twenty-one, made light of her aunt's efforts, having theories of her own on the subject. Madge had been to college; but, though a very bright scholar, her course was cut short by her being discovered in some prank which resulted in her expulsion.

Her own case illustrated her theory with regard to discharged prisoners.
"I was born," she said, "with the Old Nick in me and must work out my own career in his service."

"Nonsense!" replied her aunt. "You were born to ease and comfort. Your silly prank, for which you were expelled from college, was the result of exuberance of youthful spirits. Criminals are usually driven into crime and, once in it, cannot get out of it. A discharged prisoner bears a brand that time cannot efface. No one will employ him, and he is driven to commit more crime to obtain the necessities of life."

"I wonder," said Madge thoughtfully,
"were I a discharged criminal if I could get on."

"Try it and see."

The words made an impression on Madge. "Try it and see!" The idea would not depart. She was really a girl of great depth. Had she not also been a girl of feeling she might have taken hold of some one of the women's questions of the day and made a hobby of it. She was rather fitted for a wife and mother, and the strength in her of this instinct prevented her from embracing any cause that would hold her undivided attention.

But "try it and see" would not down.
Week after week passed, and a desire to test her ability to get on with the brand of a criminal upon her grew apace. Meanwhile she was devoting herself to society, finding it hollow hearted and the duties it involved tedious. Born for something more in keeping with an active brain and a sympathetic nature, she tired of people whose only object was to climb socially and maintain their position when they reached the top of the ladder.

"Aunt Isabel," she said one morning,
"I've made up my mind."

"To what?"

"I'm going to 'try it and see.'"

"Try what and see?"

"I'm going to take on myself the brand of Cain, renounce for a season home, income—in short, everything except such belongings as are given a discharged prisoner—and see if I can make a living without committing a crime."

which to make a living, unless her education would serve that purpose. But for a confessed criminal to secure a position as teacher was hopeless. Even with a clear record Madge was without a degree. She knew nothing of the culinary art and could not fill the position of a cook. To be a housemaid required no great instruction, and this seemed to be the only field open to her.

Madge stood on the sidewalk before the prison till her aunt, with a thrown kiss, turned a corner. Then all of a sudden the voluntary jailbird felt a sinking of the heart that well nigh caused her to forego her experiment.

"Great heavens!" she said to herself.
"Suppose I really were a discharged prisoner!"

For the first time in her life she realized the very great difference in the social status in which she was born from that of the grades from which most criminals are produced. A dirty newsboy five or six years old passed her crying his papers. She had seen hundreds of them and had thought no more of any of them than a dog pulling a huckster's wagon. Now this little fellow made her heart ache. While she had been at birth placed in a satin lined bassinet, this boy had likely been placed on dirty cotton bedclothing, odoriferous and squalid. She had sat, one of a ring of daintily dressed children, singing kindergarten songs; he was at that age breasting a cold world selling newspapers. She remembered with something like shame that she had not even appreciated the advantages she had enjoyed at college—advantages that many a poor girl had wept bitter tears or because she could not make them the basis of earning an honorable living and which would have saved her from a life of toil.

But these thoughts served to bring out all there was of strength in Madge's nature. Drawing down the corners of her pretty mouth with a grim resolution she started down the street and on reaching a residential district rang the doorbell of the first respectable looking house she came to.
A member of the family answered the call.

"Does the lady want a maid?" asked Madge.

"She's always wanting a maid. Maids are not plentiful nowadays."

Leaving Madge in the vestibule, the person went inside and returned with an invitation for the applicant to come in and see the lady. Madge found her in a luxurious boudoir. She seemed struck by Madge's refined features.

"Madam," Madge began, "I beg of you to employ me. I have been very unfortunate. Accused of a crime of which I am innocent, I have spent a year in prison. I have only this morning been discharged with enough money—"

The horror depicted on the woman's face was appalling to the applicant.

"I don't need any help at present,"
she said, looking hard at the door.

"I beg of you not to turn me away.
I promise you—"

"Leave the house at once or I will call the police and have you put out."

Madge beat a hasty retreat.

Before making another application she resolved to try to gain a footing in the employer's good graces before confessing the brand upon her. She rang several bells in succession, to be told that no maid was wanted, one you'd get off my beat. I wouldn't like to run in a nice lookin' girl like you for vagrancy, but if you keep loiterin' about here I'll have to do so."

This capped the climax. Madge had tried her experiment of making a living with a brand upon her, and she was quite satisfied as to the disadvantages of such a situation. She was faint for want of food and had failed to obtain it even in a second class restaurant. She resolved to go home for a lunch and remain there.

"Call a cab," she said to the policeman.

"A cab!" was the astonished exclamation.

"Yes, a cab."

Madge showed him a half dollar.
He whistled to a man nodding on the driver's seat of a taxi, who aroused himself and drove his conveyance to the curb before the vagrant. When she entered, giving the chauffeur her address, the policeman looked more amazed than ever. In a few moments she was driven to her own door.

"What," said Miss Wetmore, "home already?"

"Yes, Aunt Isabel. I'm satisfied as to the preliminaries. Now for the work in hand."

In a subsequent career of usefulness Madge Ellison found this practical experience as to the difficulties discharged prisoners meet on emerging again into the world with a brand upon them worth more to her than reading many volumes on the subject. It not only gave her information, but for every such person she helped she felt a heartfelt sympathy.

Instead of becoming a butterfly of fashion, as might have been expected from her wealth and social position, Madge became a worker in the cause of humanity, and in time her name was honored by the community in which she lived and loved by hundreds of those she had helped.

To Popularize Sheep Raising.

A scheme for popularizing sheep breeding in counties of the Province of Ontario is being promoted by the Agricultural Department. The plan is to take five counties, the names of which have not been selected yet, and applications will be received from each of these counties from farmers' sons and others who have taken one of the short courses under district representatives. In each county a competition will be held in sheep judging, and the boy who makes the best record and whose father is not now raising sheep, and who conforms to the conditions, will be given a flock of six ewes. He has to agree to keep records of the cost and other things. The ewes become the property of the lads for two years. At the end of two years from the time that they took them over they turn back to the Live Stock Branch two shearing ewes, at the end of the third year two more, and at the end of the fourth year other two. By this period the boys will have given back six shearing ewes.
In addition to this the Live Stock Branch is supplying pure-bred rams, and it is estimated that at the end of a year these young farmers should get six lambs. It is probable that in time the scheme may be extended to more than five counties.

"Nevertheless I'm resolved."

"Very well; I'll help you to carry out your design."

Miss Wetmore took her niece to a prison where the aunt was well known to the warden and told him of Madge's plan. When Madge left the prison she was dressed as a woman of low de- gree and given the amount of funds usually granted discharged prisoners. At the prison gate she left her aunt with the words, "I shall try the ex- periment to the bitter end."

Miss Wetmore embraced her, spoke a few words of commendation and en- couragement, and Madge found herself alone on a street in a great city with the voluntary brand of a criminal upon her.

In order to come as nearly as pos- sible to the conditions of the test it had been arranged that if inquiries were made at the prison concerning her it should be said that she had been sent up for theft and no more information should be given. One ad- vantage that a real discharged pris- oner would have in a possible passing of time without her record being dis- covered Madge found it expedient to take upon herself. She was to confess that she had been in jail, but declare that she was innocent of the crime of which she had been convicted. This advantage and disadvantage Madge considered would offset each other.

She had not been taught anything by

When at last she struck a house where a maid was wanted and was ad- mitted to the lady's presence, the in- terview was no longer than the first one. On being asked if she had a recommendation from the last person she had served she was forced to ad- mit that she had not and was dismiss- ed at once.

It was 10 o'clock when Madge had left the prison, and after three hours, going from house to house in search of a position, she became faint rather than hungry and stepped into a res- taurant of second grade that she had once been obliged to put up with for want of a better to get something to strengthen her. Taking a seat at a table, a waiter handed her a menu, but while she was looking to find the price of a cup of tea and a roll the proprietor stepped up to her and, with Guelph's Loss by War.

The extent to which recruiting has been carried on in Guelph is well reflected in the returns from the As- sessment Department, which were handed out recently. Assessor Hast- ings places the population of the city at 16,022, a decrease from the pre- vious year of 713. A large number of soldiers' wives and families have returned to the old country until after the war. The total assessment is $11,419,930, an increase of more than $200,000. The city loses the business tax from the hotels of the city, which was included in the esti- mates at the first of the year. It amounts to $1,800. Only one ward in the city shows an increase in population.

Mr. Rowell, at the annual meeting of the General Reform Association, as well as in Tilsonburg, showed how the Ontario Government had been remiss in the matter on two fundamental points. First, they had voted down the Opposition's proposal that the pro- duction and sale of nickel in the province should be under government control, and secondly they had voted down the Opposition's resolution that the International Nickel Company should be taxed in accordance with the law and not allowed to escape with a paltry sum.

CANADIAN NORTHERN ALL THE WAY

The Red Cross Society

We welcome the arrival to Canada of tried friends of Red Cross work, in the persons of their Excellencies, the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire. Devonshire House during the war has been a headquarters of British Red Cross work. Lady Maud Cavendish is working as a nurse under the Red Cross, and the Duke and Duchess have been recently created respectively, Knight and Lady of Grace of St. John of Jerusalem, in recognition of their services. The Red Cross Society feels that great assistance will be given to patriotic work by their Excellencies.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of our Society, will be held in the Council Chamber on Saturday afternoon, December 2nd, at 2 o'clock. We would ask all the members to be present at the appointed time, as the work meeting starts at 2.30.

The Finance Committee will meet at the home of Mrs. C. I. Mayhew, on Monday afternoon, December 4th, (instead of Tuesday) at 3.30, when the returns from the Mite Boxes will be handed in.

We acknowledge with thanks a generous donation of money from Mrs. Wm. Rankin.

The Red, White and Blue Club will hold a bazaar in the Town Hall, on Saturday, December 9th. This will be a grand opportunity to purchase our Christmas gifts, as there will be for sale many attractive articles, suitable for Yuletide.

Mrs. Jas. Fitzpatrick has undertaken to furnish most of the refreshments, each Saturday for our afternoon teas, for which kindness the Society is most grateful.

Last week a box was shipped to headquarters containing 144 pairs of socks—and upon request one of 105 pairs to Capt. R. G. H. Travers, and also one of 60 pairs to Major of hospital comforts next week, and would ask that many helpers come to our meeting, Saturday afternoon, that we may finish the work of this shipment. Tea will be served as usual. The Hall will also be open in the morning.

Women's Patriotic Service and Red Cross Work

Through the "U. E. Loyalist" Chapter, I.O.D.E.

The above committee wishes to express its deep appreciation to Mrs. Wm. Unger, of the Palace Road, Napanee, for her generous kindness in making a donation of $5.00 for the work we are engaged on, and tender to Mrs. Unger our grateful thanks.

As the Christmas season approaches a very urgent and moving appeal comes to us from the Belgian Relief Committee in Toronto, a personal letter to the Regent of the above Chapter from Mrs. Arthur Pepler, Convenor of the Belgian Relief Committee in that city, explaining the alarming conditions that exist in Belgium, and urging our co-operation on and aid in assisting to relieve the children's plight in Belgium, has been received within the last few days.

This appeal is one that we should meet to the best of our ability, and one that it is not possible to resist or ignore. Let us then, do our part in this, as in other war work we have taken up, and let us do it worthily, as Daughters of the Empire, and above all as Canadian women, and Canadian mothers, who cannot find it in their hearts to allow the cry of suffering children in distress to go unheeded.

Dear Brother:—For two years I was unable to write you the military rules provided. months I have fought against the various nations wounded four times and forced to endure tortures, but I never always fought hard, but through.

The officers in Germany are young men about seventeen years of age, students from the school, and this is how Germany tends to win, but Germany win. The soldiers have the courage to fight. They would give themselves up to the were it not for the strong which prevents them.

What if the response should involve some sacrifice?—is not sacrifice required by that which is most worthy? Supposing some, or perhaps many of us, make our Christmas offerings in this wise, instead of in the customary way of gifts to friends and neighbors in comfortable circumstances, will not such offerings be more blessed, and shall we not feel the better for so doing?

Let us then make our Christmas offering to the children of Belgium worthily and willingly!

German Internes Depot, Rotterdam, Holland, Sept. 26, 1916.
Dear Sir:—For two years past I have been writing you because the rules provided. For 25 years I have fought against various nations. I was in various times and forced to endure, but I never kicked and fought hard, but now I am goes on both by day and night. In days we have to be in the trenches four days in the week, the second, in the third, and then days in the first. Then our days' rest, but what rest? Half the company is and you are scarcely able to have to drill again. I tell you it is enough to make one insane. After fighting for years in the front, many of us return half-crazy from the noise of shells and cannon noises.

I have read the German reports. I read their papers and find true in their reports. I killed a lot of our men, and they always said it did not hurt much. The English men times more shots than our artillery is out of almost of the time. It is terrible, the conditions we live in the trenches. Next

I write you more. I am crossing the line from Belgium to the English, but that is all. I will have to stay six weeks and then they go. As soon as I am free you and then please send me to come to America. I am young I can pursue my career as an architect and can go anywhere.

Settlers' Loans Prove Popular.

Applications for loans under the settlers' loan legislation of last session, already amount to $92,790 for the District of Timiskaming alone, and others are still coming in.

"A substantial amount has already been paid over to the settlers and the bulk of the amount applied for is in process of going to them," stated the Government Loan Commissioner, Mr. Fred Dané.

"We have given precedence to applications from Timiskaming, because we thought the need there more urgent than in other districts on account of the fires," said Commissioner Dapé. "One effect of the burning of so much standing timber has been to give an impetus to clearing. With the bush burned off settlers are looking for loans to help them get more land cleaned up and in cultivation, and to get cattle to pasture in the burned areas."

The New Liskeard, Englehart, Matheson, and Cochrane agencies contribute the bulk of the applications. Cochrane has 82 settlers applying for a total of $25,300; Matheson, 62 for $26,100; Englehart, 48 for $16,550, and New Liskeard, 49 for $18,800.

In the Hearst agency away out on the Transcontinental, nine settlers want $2,940; in the North Bay district, five settlers ask for $2,100, and at Halleybury, three want to divide up $1,000. While the legislation under which loans are made permits the Commissioner making a loan up to $500, secured by the settler's property, comparatively few men have asked for so much, the average running around $350.

Trade Opportunities in West Indies.

Mr. James E. Dobbs, who as a representative of the Canada India League, spent ten weeks in the British West Indies and in Trinidad in particular, has returned to Toronto firmly convinced that there are vast opportunities for the development of Canadian trade in the West Indies. There is there, Mr. Dobbs declares, a prevailing opinion that almost all sorts of Canadian products can find a ready market if advertised and sold by competent representatives who would see that the goods were prepared and packed to suit tropical conditions. The Canada India League is interested in bringing about a closer bond of sympathy among the colonies of the Empire and eliminating any social, religious, or racial prejudices which might exist, and Mr. Dobbs spent considerable time in Trinidad, where men from the East Indies form one-third of the population, in studying the social, commercial, and domestic life of the men from the East Indies. Mr. Dobbs formed the opinion that those men after perhaps three years at the outset came to understand that "While in Rome they must do as the Romans do," and adapted themselves to conditions.

How They Raised the Money.

Many Australian business firms and manufacturers rendered very material assistance in the flotation of the last war loan by taking up bonds on behalf of their employees in return for small weekly payments. While each firm made its own arrangement, yet the general procedure was to assist any employee in receipt of less than £200 a year in taking up bonds from £10 to £50, the amount to be repaid at the rate of 2s. 6d. a week for each £10 bond.

The employers undertook to pay over the amount subscribed by the employee without interest being

Lady Pole Carew Most Distinguished-Looking Woman in England.

That the distinction of being society's most beautiful woman belongs to Lady Pole Carew, whose husband has retired from politics, is the opinion of many people in England. Furthermore, General Sir Reginald Pole Carew has been declared the handsomest man in the British army. And "Polly Carey," as he is often referred to, is as popular as he is handsome, while he has a splendid record for service behind him.

He is one of Robert's men, accompanying "Bobs" on his march to Kandahar. In the Boer War Sir Reginald earned distinction.

He is rather fond, by the way, of telling the following story illustrating the energy of the British soldier. A German attache in the South Africa war was amazed at the spectacle of the British soldiers, after a fight, staggering into camp, but rushing instantly after a football which was thrown on the field. Said the attache to Sir Reginald:

"Well, you are the most extraordinary people in the whole civilized world. I have been with your men all day. I know what they have done. I know they have had scarcely anything to eat or drink, and I know of no other troops in the world that would not have been lying down asleep."

Lady Pole Carew is the eldest daughter of the famous yachtman and sportsman, the Marquis of Ormonde, and shares her father's love and enthusiasm for the sea. She is also a great lover of foreign travel, and some time ago made a tour of

FISHED WITH A GANDER.

And Now the Poor Fowl Shows a Distinct Aversion to Water.

A gander was so upset by experiments made upon and through him by a mischievous boy that for a long time he would not go into the water.

The gander's determination to abstain from water as a means of bathing grew out of the following circumstances:

The boy thought he would tie a fishing line to the gander's leg and with a hook properly baited turn the bird out into the water. The bait was a frog.

The gander went into the mill pond, where he swam around for half an

FRENCH ENERGY FOR WAR.
 No Time to Be Concerned With Mere Industrial Progress.

The important effect on French trade after the war of the new chemical, metallurgical and mechanical industries created in answer to the needs of the army, were emphasized by Albert Thomas, Under-Secretary of War, at a luncheon of the Economic and Financial Association.

"Our war loan of to-day is not only the loan of a victor, but incorporated as it is in all our new creations, it becomes in some ways a great industrial loan which will permit us to prepare fruitful enterprises for the peace of to-morrow," he said. "We shall have made new and fecund creations, and the national savings, almost entirely locked up hitherto in Government securities, will flow into channels where they will be the driving force of the industry of to-morrow. Attempts are being made to revive old industries, to create new ones, and direct new French forces to the conquests of new markets. I wish to give a word of warning. Let us not disperse our strength. Let us associate our pre-occupations of to-day with those of to-morrow, but let us be sure that no force shall be diverted from the essential task of to-day and from the France of the war.

"We depend upon America," he went on, "for parts of our steel and shells. Recently there have been torpedoings, and ships laden with steel have been unable to sail. If these incidents become more frequent and deliveries of American metal become rarer what would our situation be? Our duty to-day is not perhaps to assure the entire production of the raw materials that we may conceive will be wanted to carry out our programme of shell manufacture, but to diminish gradually the gap between our resources and our wants."

ELECTRIC ARC MELTS STEEL.

Most Intense Heat Produced by Man Is From the Carbon Flame.

The most intense heat produced by man is that of the electric arc, and the possibilities of its application in various branches of American industry have only begun to be realized. Like many other useful scientific agents, the electric arc has been adopted by the burglar. There is no safe known that will not yield to the electric carbon applied by the skilled "safe cracker."

Aside from lighting, the most useful purpose to which the electric arc has been put is in the mending of broken or cracked castings and metal parts of all kinds. A broken shaft, for instance, can be resurrected from the junk heap if a skilled workman, with adequate arc apparatus, is given a chance at it.
 Moreover, a broken metal piece repaired by the electric arc is as serviceable as when new. In fact, strain tests made upon repaired castings often result in breakage at a different point than where the repair was made.

Operators are well protected against danger. Due to the intense heat at the point at which the carbon pours its electrical fire upon the metal, the operators usually wear helmets or at least hold between their eyes and the arc a thick plate of cobalt glass. The amount of protection required depends upon the strength of the current fed to the arc.—Popular Science Monthly.

Cornish Pies.
 There are several dishes peculiar to Cornwall, and a pasty is one. It resembles an apple turnover, but is composed of meat, potato and seasoning, finely chopped. Almost every kind of food is put into a Cornish pie. Squab pie is a great favorite. Herby pie is another peculiar dish, composed of net-ties, pepper cress, parsley, mustard and spinach, together with thin slices of pork. Pies are also made with leeks and pilchards, goose feet, gizzard and blood, raisins, sugar and apples and mackerel, parsley and cream.—London

 FOR FLETCHER'S
 CASTORIA

The boy thought he would tie a fishing line to the gander's leg and with a hook properly baited turn the bird out into the water. The bait was a frog.

The gander went into the mill pond, where he swam around for half an hour, turning "dipdaps" and diving for food. Suddenly he felt a pull at his leg and looked as surprised as the "bone fisherman" when he caught a whale.

The gander thought there was something too matter, and he looked to ascertain the cause. The pickerel on the hook gave several jerks, whereupon the gander decided he wanted to go home.

He at once started for the shore, but the pickerel on the hook wanted to go the other way. The gander seemed frightened at first. Then he evidenced signs of anger and tried to fly to shore, but the pickerel pulled him back.

After half an hour of the hardest work he had ever done the gander came ashore, dragging a six pound pickerel up the bank.

The boy took off the pickerel and baited the hook with another frog. He tried to induce the gander to go in for another swim, but no amount of persuasion could get the bird to do so. He simply would not be driven in. For many weeks the gander would not go into the water. He would proceed with the rest of the flock to the water's edge, but there he would stop. He would seem to be arguing with them with reference to the danger they were courting.—Los Angeles Times.

SHOOTING WITH A RIFLE.

The Proper Way to Aim if One Aspires to Good Marksmanship.

Walter Winans, the famous American sharpshooter, who lives in England, writes to the Scientific American the following directions as to the proper way to aim a rifle:

"The way to shoot is, first, put a big ivory front sight in place of the black one used for target shooting.

"Most real objects one shoots at are more or less dark, and the black front sight is difficult to see on the object;
 the white one shows up at once.

"Next, have your hind sight put on the rifle at the distance from your eye that you can read print best.

"When shooting do not try to focus a black bullseye, a black front sight and a black hind sight and a half dozen other things alternately while you hold on to your rifle like grim death.

"Look at the object you want to hit.
 If it is moving judge how much allowance in front you must make, bring up your rifle to your shoulder, swinging it with the movement of the object you want to hit, and press the trigger as the butt touches your shoulder.

"The bullet will go where you want it to without your noticing the sights at all.

"If you want to be a good rifle shot at game, or as a soldier, join the nearest clay pigeon shooting club, and when you can break 90 per cent of the clays you can rest perfectly confident that you can hit a man every shot you fire if being charged by an enemy if you have a rifle in your hands instead of a shotgun.

"If you practice in a 'coal hole' rifle gallery at a stationary black bullseye with a black front sight and see 'three front sights' and a 'blurred back sight' you are not learning to shoot, but merely ruining your eyesight."

OUR OTTAWA LETTER

Friends of the Borden Government keep explaining that bread costs more in Canada than it does in England, because England is three thousand miles nearer the war. At least that is how it sounds to the average sceptic. The fact of the matter is that the argument is all against them—they haven't a leg to stand on.

Their tactics however, are the same as usual. They wrap the high cost of living up in the old flag and ask the people to swallow it on patriotic grounds. The reasoning is that the war entails sacrifice and the Borden Government's idea of sacrifice is to sacrifice the people and not their friends, the profiteers, who have till October, 1917, to, shear the people good and close.

There is nothing new about the Borden Government's idea that the people are the ones to sacrifice. They got into power on that very idea in 1911, waving the old flag violently the while to distract attention from their guilty purpose, and they have acted on it ever since. No sooner were they seated than they proceeded to hand the country over to the food exploiters who were mainly instrumental in putting them in. The tariff was boosted in three jumps to forty per cent., the North-west farmer was delivered, gagged and bound, to the milling trust, and the British preference was considerably expurgated. One way and another the home market was sewed up good and tight for the middleman.

Five years ago the majority of the people of Canada, with the old flag being waved in their eyes, were unable to see how a limited interchange of table products with the United States would enable the Canadian consumer to pay less for his food and the Canadian producer at the same time to get more. Time has taught that lesson pretty well and it's a low brow that can't understand now where the middleman got his work in. War prices prevailing, the farmer gets twelve cents now for hogs on the hoof, and that teaches him what competition will do for him. But five years ago he couldn't see it. He couldn't comprehend the fact that he would get a better price for his hogs with two sets of packers bidding than with one. He knows now. The consumer suffered from a similar obtuseness, but he probably understands now, having learned through his pocket, that thirty-seven cent bacon might listen to reason if United States bacon were allowed to give it an argument.

To come right down to cases, the gap between ten cent hogs—which was before-the-war price—and thirty-seven cent bacon, is the whole indictment against the high cost of living. The middleman is getting it all. He pays the producer the least and charges the consumer the most he can, and thus works both ends for the middleman. The Borden Government is his particular friend. Under its auspices he becomes bold and does anything he likes—in Canada.

Of course, he can't get gay with the United States as a certain bloated middleman did the other day, when he proposed to open a chain of stores in Buffalo. "Oh, you will, will you?" said the local privateers. "Very well, we'll invade Toronto." And no more was heard of that. This gentleman's argument, by which Toronto is prevented from getting cheaper food is being well kept.

But in Ottawa it's different. There the middleman can do anything and get away with it. The Borden Government has such a high opinion of the middlemen that it keeps the biggest of them right there at Ottawa, puts him on a job out of which he expects to pull a knighthood, not to speak of the drag it gives him with the British War Office in the matter of beef contracts, and posts him strategically on all the committees and commissions whose business it is to investigate the high cost of living. If any of these commissions discover anything—and one or two have actually had to stumble into the facts although it was against the Government's wishes—Mr. Middleman is there to give it a soft answer and head off discussion.

Some critics have urged that what this country needs is less greed and guide, philosopher and friend. The Government already has plenty of information on the subject—it has four reports on hand—but it prefers to go on investigating. People got a little clamorous the other day and insisted on something being done, so the Government ordered another investigation and let it go at that. The poor fools asked for bread and they got an order-in-council.

This order-in-council is a delightful subterfuge. It is the acme of circumsppection and circumlocution. It proves that the longest way round is the shortest way home. It involves four investigations—four, count 'em four—and makes no promises at that. First the municipal council investigates, and reports, then the Provincial Government investigates the municipal council's report and reports, then the Minister of Labor investigates the Provincial Government's report and reports to the Cabinet Council, which presumably investigates whether the people who were suffering from the high cost of living, have died in the meantime. If they haven't, the Attorney General may be given permission to prosecute, if he sees fit. Thus the thing works around in a circle—the snake with its tail in its mouth—the symbol of eternity.

Not to put too fine a point on it the Government's latest move—prosecution via order-in-council—is another bluff, another conatory manoeuvre. Good word that "conatory." Would look well stuffed. It means "stringing it along."

FARM HANDS SCARCE.

And They Will Be Scarcer in England When War is Over.

The Journal of Agriculture (Eng.) in a discussion on the English agricultural labor problem says it is estimated that 320,000 men have left the land in the United Kingdom since the beginning of the war, and to this figure will have to be added the number leaving between now and the end of the war; the number who will not go back to the land is estimated at twenty-five per cent. of the enlistments, or at least 80,000.

From examination of the means to be adopted, to meet this serious shortage the committee which has inquired into the matter are forced to the conclusion that unless the agricultural production and population are to be further reduced, a considerable number of ex-service men who were not employed in farm work on the outbreak of the war will have to be brought into English agriculture.

Referring to the possibility of the ex-service man settling in the Dominions or in foreign countries, the committee think a great deal might be done, not only to bring home to him the comparative advantages of life in a more settled country, but to improve the conditions that have hitherto prevailed.

As a means of improving conditions it is suggested that small allotments of land be made near towns so that artisans engaged in industrial employment in those towns may provide at least a portion of their food supply in their spare time. It is further suggested, with a view of giving an added stimulus to general farming, that duties be placed on agricultural produce imported, which will be sufficient "to give the protection that is necessary to the farmer."

HONESTY

there to give it a soft answer and head off discussion.

Some critics have urged that what this country needs is less greed and more common honesty. But where is it to begin? What happens if the people look to the Borden Government for an example. Its shell-making friends soaking the country for anything up to nine hundred per cent. profit! Paper shoes, spavined charges, fuse scandals! Colonel John Wesley Allison cried up by Sir Sam Hughes, as a man of more honor than the Auditor General! Tom Kelly stealing a million dollars presumably for the Conservative campaign fund, and getting two and a half years in jail for being a goat!

Under these prodigal auspices is it any wonder that smaller dealers make free with the necessities of life—potatoes, butter, eggs, milk, bread, coal, and so forth and so on. Potatoes two dollars and a half a bushel. Milk nine cents a quart and blue at that—hay crop, meanwhile, the best we have had in years. Bread eighteen cents a large loaf, poor, porous stuff, full of holes and pernicious substitutes. Eggs, seventy cents a dozen, not honest eggs either, pretend to be fresh laid, but are really cold storage firsts.

And talking of eggs, how one would love to hear a conversation between an egg, just out of jail; we'll say, three years of prison pallor on it, and the Person who put it there. What wouldn't that egg say, to him for throwing it into prison, robbing it of its character with ammonia fumes and then letting it out again to hold up the public for prices which are sheer robbery? Is it any wonder that an egg occasionally goes bad under these discouraging circumstances? The wonder is how any egg remains honest with the Old Fagin of the egg business teaching it how to go out and pick pockets.

And what happens to the eggs, happens to many other articles of use and comfort which this man, whom the Borden Government delights to honor, succeeds in cornering? Not a cow, nor a pig, nor a hen, nor a turkey, nor an egg, through the length and breadth of Ontario, but views his approach with fear and trembling. "Kidnapper! Assassin!" They cry and flee shrieking.

All of which is to say that, the people of Canada have a fat chance to get any redress for the high cost of living from a Government that makes the Chief Buccaneer its principal ing, that duties be placed on agricultural produce imported, which will be sufficient "to give the protection that is necessary to the farmer."

It is evidently the intention of those behind what is proposed to keep at home the prospective farm laborers it was hoped might be attracted to this country. It also appears probable, in addition to this, Canadian farmers may find, after the war, that the United Kingdom will no longer offer a free market for their produce.

Canadians Get V. C.

The Victoria Cross has been awarded to Lieut. Thomas Orde Lawlor Wilkinson, North Lancashire Rifles, killed July 25, aged twenty-two. He was the second son of C. E. Wilkinson of Comox, B.C., and was a surveyor in Victoria when he enlisted originally, early in the war, in the Canadian Gordons.

Lieut. Wilkinson was decorated "for most conspicuous bravery. During an attack when a party of another unit were retiring without their machine gun, Lieut. Wilkinson rushed forward, and with two of his men, got the gun into action and held up the enemy till they were relieved. Later, when the advance was checked, during a bombing attack he forced his way forward and found four or five men of different units stopped by a solid block of earth, over which the enemy was throwing bombs. With great pluck and promptness, he mounted a machine gun on top of the parapet and dispersed the enemy bombers. Subsequently he made two most gallant attempts to bring in wounded men, but in his second attempt was shot through the heart, just before reaching his man. Throughout the day he set a magnificent example of courage and self-sacrifice."

The Victoria Cross also is awarded to the Rev. William Robert Addison, chaplain, who early lived in a Canadian lumber camp. He carried a wounded man and assisted several others to cover. By his splendid example of utter disregard of danger he encouraged the stretcher-bearers to go forward under a heavy fire.

Canada's Musical Output.

An attempt to catalogue Canada's contribution to the musical world was made recently in the Canadian Courier, which unearthed the following list:

British Columbia gave the world Mme. Edvina; Calgary sent out Kathleen Parlow; Portage La Prairie gave origin to Edith Miller, mezzo-soprano, who is now with the Chicago Opera Company, and Winnipeg was the first musical arena for Redfern Hollinshead, the lyric tenor, who has spent the main part of his musical career in Toronto; Guelph, Ont., gave us Edward Johnson, the noted operatic tenor.

Toronto produced Ernest Seitz, gifted pupil of Lhevinne and formerly of Vogt; Elizabeth Campbell, contralto, born in some little town like Whitby and afterward with the Century Opera Company in New York; Bertha Crawford, now in England, and half a dozen others. Ottawa turned out Diane Iavoie-Herz, pianist and pupil of Scriabine; Eva Gauthier, popular soprano and protégée of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Montreal gave Edmond Burke, operatic baritone and colleague of Melba; Donald, light soprano and musical ward of Lord Strathcona—with many more. Chambly, P. Q., furnished the immortal Albani. Some small town in Nova Scotia produced Evelyn Starr, violinist.

It is reported that the first he came to London was in 1906, East Tyrone sent him minister as its M.P. But soon had a circle of admirers very wide of St. Stephen's full share of native Irish wit and he united an extensive knowledge, and his in the House of Commons, full of the cause he espoused, yet sparkled with satire and a whimsical humor made him friends in every House. He left Parliament in 1910 to take up the university professorship.

Son of a farmer, who was pioneer of the land movement, he was born in 1880. The war broke out he answered Redmond's call to enlist with enthusiasm. He threw up his university and obtained a mission, and his appeals to trymen were the most rousing during Mr. Redmond's campaign. He had no shirkers, and his condemnation of the German atrocities was the most caustic and scathing of kultur that the world heard.

THE FUND'S NEW PRESIDENT.

The Duke of Devonshire Becomes the Chief Executive of the Canadian Patriotic Fund.

The new Governor-General, the Duke of Devonshire, has manifested his interest in the work being carried on by the Canadian Patriotic Fund by consenting to become the President of the Fund. This position was held by the Duke's predecessor, the Duke of Connaught, from the inception of the fund until his departure from Canada and the present position of the Fund in National confidence and financial strength is largely due to his inspiration and personal devotion to its inter-great national undertaking.

EXHAUSTING A SUBJECT.

A Satirical Hint to Both Young and Old Writers.

Writers should early learn not to try to exhaust a subject. If there is one thing above another thing that a subject will not stand for it is to be exhausted. It is the one tireless thing extant. In every other way subjects are amiable and tractable.

If you go at a subject in the right spirit you can say nearly anything you wish about it, but immediately you try to get a rope around a subject's neck and chase it around a ring until it is absolutely used up the said subject takes on a dry, dogged, stubborn air and refuses to be interesting, and of course a writer who cannot keep his subject interesting is lost.

Think of the most uninteresting books you ever read. They were written by men who quite evidently sat down with the mental resolution,
"Now, I'll just clean up on this subject once and for all, so that it will henceforth be clear to all posterity, even unto the day of judgment." But of course no such aim was ever realized.

The only sure result of trying to exhaust a subject is to prove that it is exhaustless.—Life.

An Awful Experience.

A native diver descended into the water to see whether one of the piers, then in course of construction, had set.
While he was engaged in this work a great iron cylinder subsided a little, crushing his hand between it and the masonry. When, on a signal being given, another diver came down he found his unfortunate comrade imprisoned under water without hope of escape.
After a few moments of mute despair and harrowing uncertainty a speechless decision was arrived at, and the newcomer proceeded with chisel and hammer to hack off his unhappy companion's hand at the wrist. The prisoner was thus liberated, but died soon after reaching the surface from the shock. Never, I think, has an opium eater in his dreams imagined a more pitiful spectacle of hopeless human suffering.—"Travels In India."

Disagreeable Persons.

When I see a disagreeable person approaching I walk away. I don't wait until he gets started. The most disagreeable people, when they approach, say a few agreeable things to begin with; then is the time for disagreeing. It's no use to argue with disagreeable people. If they could help it they would. Possibly they regard the annoying things they say as criticism; every one likes to think of himself as a critic. The only complete answer to a disagreeable person is flight or a fight, and no one cares to be mugged up constantly by fighting.—Ed Howe in New York Independent.

Her First Victim.

Lossie, aged two and a fraction, but precocious in all feminine arts, was discovered by her mother standing on a chair before the mirror and brushing her hair according to a fashion of her own devising—with a coquettish and provocative sweep to one side. As her mother entered unnoticed by the intent artist, she heard the minx remark to herself with complacency, "Daddy will kiss me now."—New York Post.

NICKEL.

More light continues to be shed on the nickel question and more and more does the government show up unfavorably.

Among the public men who have discussed the question within the last ten days are The Rt. Hon. Sir Wilfred Laurier, Mr. N. W. Rowell, K. C., M. P. P., Mr. Hartley Dewart, K. C. M. P. P., Hon. A. E. Kemp and Hon. Arthur Meighen. The last two were on the defensive for the Government but they were laboring under tremendous difficulties and failed completely to shift the burden of responsibility.

Sir Wilfred Laurier at Ottawa was most emphatic that in view of the statements that the "Deutschland" on her second trip to Germany was again carrying Canadian nickel, more thorough assurances than had been given up to the present, should be given by the government on the point.

Mr. Rowell, at the annual meeting of the General Reform Association, as well as in Tilsonburg, showed how the Ontario Government had been remiss in the matter on two fundamental points. First, they had voted down the Opposition's proposal that the production and sale of nickel in the province should be under government control, and secondly they had voted down the Opposition's resolution that the International Nickel Company should be taxed in accordance with the law and not allowed to escape with a paltry sum.

Mr. Dewart created a sensation by reading letters which he said showed that the International Nickel Company on their own admission, in a letter written by their General Manager of sales, stated they were handling all their export business of metallic nickel through their London agents and Mr. Dewart showed that this agent company had been dealing with the enemy, quoting a judgment of the Admiralty Prize Court, in proof of his statement.

The Toronto World (Conservative) commenting on Mr. Dewart's speech said, "the startling charges of Mr. Dewart must be probed to the bottom the flow of Canadian nickel to German munition works must be stopped. The men responsible for it must be punished, and all the nickel plated Cabinet ministers must be retired to private life." Hon. Frank Cochrane has close affiliation with the men who control the nickel trust and

GENERAL REFORM ASSOCIATION

The largest and most successful annual meeting of the General Reform Association of Ontario which has been held for years, was the one of November 24th. Concentration on winning the war, criticism of the government for its failure to handle the war situation adequately or even harmoniously within its own Cabinet and the nickel question were the principal features of the day's discussion. Mr. E. M. Macdonald, M. P., of Picton, N. S., Hon. George Graham and Mr. N. W. Rowell were the leading speakers. Mr. George Gibbons presented greetings from the Liberal Club Federation of Ontario. Mr. A. J. Young was re-elected President of the Association.

PROVINCIAL CONVENTIONS.

Conventions to nominate Liberal candidates for the Provincial Legislature are being held in East Lambton, on December 1st, and Nipissing on December 12th. J. C. Elliot, M. P. P., will speak at the former, and Mr. Rowell at the latter.

BELLEVILLE CONFERENCE.

A district conference similar to the one recently held in Ottawa for Eastern Ontario, is being held in Belleville for the constituencies of the middle eastern part of the province, on December 6th. Hon. Mr. Graham will be chief representative of the Federal Party, and Mr. Rowell will discuss provincial issues.

And as I glanced at my own tall pillared, dark old house that stands just opposite Widgegables, and is of the same period and style, I knew that if I did not escape into its emptiness before I got into Cousin Martha's comfortable arms, surrounded by the rest of the Crag's family, I would never have the courage to enter into the estate of freedom I had planned.

"Sallie," I said firmly, as I handed the limp kitten down to Aunt Dilsie, as Henrietta took the other one—"puppy" I suppose I will have to call the young animal—from her mother and started on up the walk in the lead of the return expedition, "I am going over to stay in my own home tonight. I know it seems strange, but—I must. Please don't worry about me."

"Why, dear, you can't stay by yourself, with no man on the place!" exclaimed Sallie in a tone of absolute panic. "I'll go tell Cousin Martha you are here while Cousin James unpacks your satchel and things." And she hurried in her descent from the ark and also hurried in her quest for the re-enforcement of Cousin Martha's authority.

"I'm going to escape before any of them come back," I said determinedly to the Crag, who stood there still, just looking at me. "I'm not up to arguing the question tonight, for the trip has been a long one, and this is the first time I have been home since—Just let me have tonight to myself, please." I found myself pleading to him as he held up his arms to lift me clear of the wheels.

His eyes were hurt and suffering for a second, then a strange light of comprehension came from them into mine, like a benediction, as he gently set me on my feet.

"Must you, Eve?"

"Yes," I answered, with a gulp that went all the way down to my feminine toes as I glanced across the road at the grim, dark old pile that towered against the starlit sky. "I want to stay in my own house tonight—and—and I'm not afraid."

"You won't need to be frightened. I understand. I think, and here's your key. I always carry it in my pocket. Your father's candle is on the mantel. You shall have tonight to yourself. Good night, and bless your home coming, dear!"

"Good night," I answered as I turned away from his kind eyes quietly to keep from clinging to him with might and main and crossed the road to my own gate. With my head up and trying for the whistle, at least in my heart, I went quickly along the front walk with its rows of bluish peonies, nodding along either side. The two old purple lilacs beside the front steps have grown so large they seemed to be barring my way into my home with longing, sweet embraces, and a fragrant little climbing rose that has riot-ed across the front door ever since I could remember bent down and left a kiss on my cheeks.

The warm, mellow old moon flooded a glow in front of me through the big front door, as I opened it, and then hastened to pour into the wide windows as I threw back the shutters.

Logs lay ready for lighting in the wide fireplace at the end of the long room, and father's tobacco jar gleamed a reflected moonlight from its pewter sides from the tall mantle shelf. The old books melted into the dusk of their condition or right prostration, crouched on my own threshold. I was frightened at the dark and could not even cry. Then almost immediately, while I crouched quivering in every nerve, I seemed to hear a man's voice say comfortingly:

"You don't need to be frightened."

Courageously I lifted my eyes and looked down between the old lilac bushes and saw just what I expected I would—a tall, gray figure pacing slowly up and down the road. Then it was that fear came into me, stiffened my muscles and strengthened my soul—fear of myself and my own conclusions about destiny and all things pertaining thereto.

I never want to go through such another hour as I spent putting things in order in father's room, which opens off the living room, so I could go to bed by candle light in the bed in which he and I were both born. I wanted to sleep there and didn't even open any other part of the grim old house.

And when I put out the candle and lay in the high, old four post bedstead I again felt as small as I really am, and I was in danger of a bad collapse from self depreciation when my humor came to the rescue. I might just as well have gone on and slept between Henrietta and the wall, as was becoming my feminine situation, for here my determination to assert my masculine privileges was keeping a real man doing sentry duty up and down a moonlight road all night—and I wanted it.

"After this, James Hardin, you can consider yourself safe from any of my attentions or intentions," I laughed to myself as I turned my face into the pillow that was faintly scented from the lavender in which mother had always kept her linen. "I've been in Glendale two hours, and one man is on the home base with his fingers crossed. James, you are free! Oh, Jane!"

CHAPTER III. A Flint Spark.

THE greatest upheavals of nature are those that arrive suddenly without notifying the world days beforehand of their intentions of splitting the crust of the universe wide open. One is coming to Glendale by degrees, but the town hasn't found out about it yet. I'm the only one who sees it, and I'm afraid to tell.

When Old Harpeth, who has been looking down on a nice, peaceful, man ordained, built and protected world, woke Glendale up the morning after my arrival and found me defiantly alone in the home of my fathers—also of each of my foremothers, by the courtesy of dower—he muttered and drew a veil of mist across his face. Slight showers ensued, but he had to come out in less than an hour from pure curiosity. I found the old garden heavily in its riot of neglected buds, shoots and blossoms, wet and welcoming with the soft odors of heaven itself.

It was well I was out early to enjoy it, for that was to be the day of my temptation and sore trial. I am glad I have recorded it all, for I might have forgotten some day how wonderfully my very pliant, feminine attitude rubbed in my masculine intentions as to my life on the blind side of all the forces brought to bear on me to put me back into my predestined place in the scheme of the existence.

"Your Cousin James' home is the

and the reply was not all insincerity, as I thought of the darkness of that long night and the Bunch's offer of a place at her sturdy little back "next the wall."

"But I will be so busy with my own work, Cousin Martha, that I am afraid I couldn't do justice to the situation and repay the children and Sallie for crowding them."

"Why, you couldn't crowd us, Evelina, honey," came in Sallie's rich voice as she sailed into the room, trailing the pup and the kit at her skirts and flying lavender ribbons at loose ends. "We've come to help you move over right away."

"Well, not while I have a voice in the affairs of my own husband's niece! How are you, Evelina, and are you crazy, Sallie Carruthers?" came in a deep raven croak of a voice that sounded as if it had harked partly from the tomb as Aunt Augusta Shelby stood in the doorway with reproof on her lips and sternness on her brow. "Peter and I will have Evelina move down immediately with us. James Hardin has as much in the way of a family as he can very well stand up under now."

And as she spoke Aunt Augusta glared at Sallie with such ferocity that even Sallie's sunshiny presence was slightly dimmed.

"Are you ready, Evelina? Peter will send the surrey for your baggage," she continued, and for a moment I quailed, for Aunt Augusta's determination of mind is always formidable, but I summoned my woman's wit and man's courage and answered quickly before she fairly snatched me from under my own rooftop.

"That would be lovely, Aunt Augusta, and how are you?" I answered and asked in the same breath, as I drew near enough to her to receive a businesslike peck on my cheek. "I expect to have you and Uncle Peter to look after me a lot, but somehow I feel that father would have liked—liked for me to live here and keep my home—his home—open. Some way will arrange itself. I haven't talked with Cousin James yet," I felt white feathers sprouting all over me, as I thus invoked the masculine dominance I had come to lay.

"You'll have to settle that matter with your Uncle Peter, then, for, following his dictates of which I did not approve, I have done our duty by the orphan. Now, Evelina, let me say in my own person that I thoroughly approve of your doing just as you plan." And as she uttered this heresy she looked so straight and militant and altogether commanding that both Cousin Martha and Sallie quailed. I felt elated, as if my soul were about to get sight of a kindred personality, or, rather a soul relative of yours, Jane.

"Oh, she would be so lonely, Mrs. Shelby, and she!"—Sallie was venturing to say with trepidation, when Aunt Augusta cut her short without ceremony.

"Lonely, nonsense! Such a busy woman as I now feel sure Evelina is going to be, will not have time to be lonely. I wish I could stay and talk with you further about your plans, but I must hurry back and straighten out Peter's mind on that question of the town water supply that is to come up in the meeting of the city council to-day. He let it be presented all wrong last time, and they got things so muddled that it was voted on incorrectly.

son with Glendale, Tenn. in some respects. I wonder why I hadn't been more scared than I was last night as the train whirled me down into proximity to Polk Hayes. But then I had had four years of forgetting him stored up as a bulwark.

"But what are you going to do, Evelina?" Sallie again began to question, with positive alarm in her voice, and I saw that it was time for me to produce some sort of a protector then and there or capitulate.

And I record the fact that I wanted to go home with Sallie and Cousin Martha and the babies and—and live under the roof of the mossback forever. All that citizenship feeling I had got poured into me from Jane and had tried on Dickie, good old Dickie, had spilled out of me at the first encounter with Polk.

There is a great big hunt going on in this world, and women are the ones only a short lap ahead. Can we turn and make good the fight—or won't we be torn to death? It has come to this it seems: Women must either be weak and cling so close to man that she can't be struck, keep entirely out of the range of his fists and arms, or develop biceps equal to his. Jane ought to have had me in training longer, for I'm discovering that I'm weak—of biceps.

"Are you coming—are you coming to live with us, Evelina? Are you coming? Answer!" questioned the small Henrietta as she stood commandingly in front of me.

"Please, Evelina," came in a coax from Sallie, while the kit crawled over and caught at my skirt as Cousin Martha raised her eyes to mine with a gentle echo of the combined wooings.

Then suddenly into Polk's eyes flamed still another demand that something told me I would have to answer later. I had capitulated and closed this book forever when the deliverance came.

CHAPTER IV.

Jasper and Petunia.

JASPER, a little older, but as black and pompous as ever, stood in the doorway and a portly figure with yellow, shining face on the step behind him.

"Why, Uncle Jasper, how did you know I was here?" I exclaimed as I fairly ran to hold out my hand to him.

"Mas' James sent me word last night, and I would er been here by daybreak, missie, 'cept I had to hunt dis yere suitable woman to bring along with me. Make your 'beesence to Miss Evelina, Lucy Petunia," he commanded.

"You needn't to bother to show her anything, child," he continued calmly. "I'll learn her all she needs to know to suit us. Then if in a week she have shown suitable ability to please us both my word is out to marry her next Sunday night. Ain't that the understanding, Tuny?" he this time demanded.

"Yes, sir," answered the Petunia, with radiant but modest hope shining from her comely yellow face.

"I've kept everything ready for you, child, since old mas' died, and I ain't never stayed offen the place a week at a time. I was just visiting out Petunia's way when I heard you'd come, and gittin' a wife to tend to us and back to you quick was the only thing that concerned me. Now we can all ing them all just why. I didn't look at Polk, but Cousin Martha's face was lovely as she told me to run quickly.

I found him on the front porch, smoking his pipe alone, while the two little relics whom he had had left to dine with him were taking their two respective naps. Our dinner was late on account of the initiation of Petunia and he had finished before we began.

"I stole most of your family today," I plunged headlong into my errand, "but I want you, too, most of all."

"You've got me even if you do prefer to keep me across the road from you," he answered, with the most solemn expression on his face, but with a crinkle of a smile in the corners of his deep eyes.

I can't remember when I didn't look with eagerness for that crinkle in his eyes, even when I was a child and he what I at that time considered a most glorious grownup individual, though he must have been the most helpless hobbledoh that ever existed.

"You don't need another vine," I answered mutinously.

Jasper's manner is an exact copy of my father's courtly grace, done in sepia, and my eyes misted for a second as I reciprocated the invitation, taking acceptance for granted.

"Of course they will stay, Uncle Jasper."

"Well," remarked Sallie, with a gasp. "you've gone to housekeeping in two minutes, Evelina."

"Jasper has always been a very forceful personality," said Cousin Martha. "He managed everything for your father at the last, Evelina, and I don't know how the whole town would have been easy about the colonel unless they had trusted Jasper."

"I like the terms on which he takes unto himself a wife," drawled Polk as he lighted a cigarette without looking at me. "Good for Jasper!"

"However, it does take a 'forceful personality' to capture a 'suitable woman' in that manner," I answered, with just as much unconcern, and then we both roared, while even Sallie, in all her anxiety, joined in.

The commanding, black old man and the happy faced, plump, little yellow woman had saved one situation—and forced another, perhaps.

Jasper's home coming dinner party was a large and successful one. Two of the dear little old Horton lady cousins got so impatient at Cousin Martha's not bringing me back to Widegables that they came teetering over to see about it, heavily accompanied by Mrs. Hargrove, whose son had been Cousin James' best friend at the University of Virginia and died and left her to him since I had been at college. The ponderosity of her mind was only equaled by that of her body. I must say Petunia made a hit with the dear old soul by the seasoning of her chicken gravy.

Sallie wanted to send the children home, but Jasper wouldn't let her, and altogether we had eleven at table.

Polk maneuvered for a seat at the head of my festive board, with a spark of the devil in his eyes, but Jasper's sense of the proprieties did not fail me, and he seated Cousin Martha in father's chair with great ceremony.

And as I looked down the long table, bright with all the old silver Jasper had had time to polish, gay with roses from my garden that he had coaxed Henrietta into gathering for him which nodded back and forth with the bubbling babies, suddenly my heart filled to the very brim with love of it all—and for mine own people.

But, just as suddenly, a vision came into my mind of the long table across the road at Widegables, with the moss-back seated at one end with only two or three of his charges stretched along the empty sides to keep him company.

I wanted him to be here with us. I wanted him badly, and I went to get him. I excused myself suddenly, tell-

"You don't need another vine," I answered mutinously.

"You know I want you, but Jasper's is the privilege of looking after you," he answered calmly. "I want you to be happy, Evelina," and I knew as I raised my eyes to his that I could consider myself settled in my own home.

"Well, then, come and have dinner No. 2 with me," I answered with a laugh that covered a little happy sigh that rose from my heart at the look in the kind eyes bent on mine.

I felt, Jane, you would have approved of that look. It was so human to human.

He came over with me, and that was one jolly party in the old dining room. They all stayed until almost sunset, and almost everybody in town dropped in during the afternoon to welcome me home and ask where I was going to live. Jasper and Petunia hovering in the background, the tea tray out on the porch set with the silver and damask all of them knew of old and the appearance of having been installed with the full approval of Cousin Martha and James and the rest of the family, stopped the questions on their lips, and they spent the afternoon much enlivened, but slightly puzzled.

Time doesn't do much to people in a place like the Harpeth valley, that is out of the stream of modern progress, and most of my friends seem to have just been sitting still, rocking their lives along in the greatest ease and comfort.

Still, Mamie Hall has three more kiddies, which added to the four she had when I left makes a slightly high, if charming, set of stair steps. Mamie also looks decidedly worn, though pathetically sweet. Ned was with her and as fresh as any one of the buds. Maternity often wilts women, but pater- nity is apt to make men bloom with the importance of it. Ned showed off the bunch as if he had produced them all, while Mamie only smiled like an angel in the background.

A slight bit of temper rose in a flush to my cheeks as I watched Caroline Lellyett sit on the steps and feed cake to one twin and two stair steps with as much hunger in her eyes for them as there was in theirs for the cake. Lee Greenfield is the responsible party in this case, and she has been loving

Her eyes follow him rather persistently. On the whole, I am glad Jane committed me to this woman's cause. I'll have to begin to exercise the biceps of Nell's heart as soon as I get some strength into my own.

And after they had all gone I sat for an hour out on the front steps of my big, empty old house and enjoyed my own loneliness, if it could be called enjoying. I could hear the Petunia's happy pizze, answering Jasper's guttural pleas-tries, out on the cabin porch behind the row of lilac bushes. I do hope that Petunia gets much and the right sort of courting during this week that Jasper has allowed her!

Strong Language Necessary.

"In spite of the War Office it is difficult for soldiers to do without strong language," says Reynolds' Weekly. "I was routing out some Germans," said a sergeant in one of the Red Cross hospitals the other day, "and the beggars wouldn't come out of their holes, though they wanted to surrender. I yelled to the silly fools, but they wouldn't budge. I was that wild, I tell you straight I'd have given a quid to know the German for —!"

PRUNE TREES IN THE FALL.

When the Leaves Have Fallen Is Best Time For Operation.

When all the leaves have fallen from the trees and the wood has ripened up in the fall is the time for pruning. There is no way of absolutely controlling sprouting after pruning. The more severely you prune the more likely you will be to have sprouts, for the trees have stored up a quantity of food and are going to make use of it some place. If a large part of the old wood has been cut off the part that remains will probably make a stronger growth than it would had all the old wood remained. Still there is always a tendency for a pruned tree to have sprouts. Some varieties are much worse than others in this respect. If very desirous of having the trunks of the trees smooth and without branches the only thing to do is to rub the young sprouts off continually while they are young.

After an orchard is established, several things are necessary in order to keep it in good shape and to keep it bearing profitably. Thorough and persistent cultivation, regular pruning and spraying and thinning of the fruit in case of large crops are all essential. The cultivation should start just as early in the spring as possible, and continue until the last of September. The disk harrow and other harrows are the best orchard cultivators. If these are used carefully it will not be necessary to turn the ground with a plow very often.

BUZZARDS AND DISEASE.

For a long time it has been known that pigeons, buzzards and other birds have spread hog cholera from farm to farm, from township to township and from county to county. The state veterinarian of Missouri, Dr. D. F. Luckey, has advised all farmers in that state to "shoot the buzzards," as the hog cholera season is here, and there is a possibility of anthrax outbreaks reported in northern Arkansas being carried over the line into Missouri by these scavengers from the sky.

There is a popular impression that there is a law in Missouri prohibiting the killing of buzzards, but it seems that this law has been repealed. Where there are such laws it will be dangerous, of course, for farmers to follow the Missouri suggestion. Dr. Luckey declares that buzzards are a menace to live stock production and should be shot. It might be well for farmers in other states to bring this matter to the attention of their legislators, and if it is found that the buzzard is more of a danger than a help, then deny them the protection of the law. It is always a serious matter, however, to interfere with the balance of wild bird or animal life, and the buzzard does have its uses.—Farm Progress.

THE GAS ENGINE.

Fills Most Important Place on Farm Machinery List.

That the gas engine ranks first among labor saving machinery and fills the most important place on the farm machinery list is the opinion of W. H. Sanders, instructor in farm motors in the Kansas State Agricultural college.

Internal combustion engines in their present state of efficiency can be relied upon to a greater degree than any other type of farm machinery if they are properly handled by an operator that understands the principles of their construction, says Mr. Sanders. "The average farmer with a little study and the application of a small amount of common sense will find that he is capable of running and caring for any of the engines on the market.

"The gas engine is an economic necessity to the modern farmer, not only because of its wide adaptability, but also due to its time saving qualities. The modern type of farmer finds that he must keep everything and everybody going at top speed every day during the rush season. He also finds that the pace is too much for either man or beast to stand, and it is here that the gas engines show their true value.

"The rush season always arrives in hot weather, when the horses are unable to give their best efforts to the farmer. The gas engine will travel through the hot weather with the same efficiency and is able to keep up the pace without a waver for twenty-four hours at a stretch."

While the gas engines are not working they are not eating their heads off

Making the Little Farm Pay

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

Owners of small farms who are supplying the market with poultry meat can do a neat stroke of business by preparing capons for high class restaurants, hotels and clubs. In handling a good sized poultry plant this branch of the business should have a place.

The principal demand for capons is between the holidays and early summer. The heavier birds are worth the most per pound, so that when a seven pound capon brings 28 cents a pound, one weighing ten pounds is worth 30 to 32 cents a pound. There is this difference in the best markets. Therefore to be grown most profitably the fowls should be of a large type.

Experienced growers use such breeds as the Plymouth Rock, Wyandotte and Orpington. There are others perhaps equally good, but these are leaders. Capons fatten easily and economically. They can generally be forced to ten pounds at an age of eight or nine months. It should be the aim of the grower to get them just as large as possible by this age, or when market conditions are best. It is not wise to keep them longer than ten months.

As capons fatten easier than other fowls, there is not much difficulty in providing suitable rations. The birds are not to have too much range after being caponized, but in pleasant weather they will do well if they have the run of an acre or two. On such places they find a variety of seeds and insects which they relish. This is only for pleasant weather, however. It is useless to try to make chickens thrive in wet or stormy weather unless they are confined in dry quarters. Capons should be allowed all the corn that they will clean up in the morning and at noon. Then in the evening they should have a moist mash made up of equal parts of cornmeal, ground oats and wheat middlings. If they are not allowed field range they need about a 10 per cent addition of meat scraps in this mash. If skim milk is available it is excellent for moisten-

CLEAN UP YOUR GARDEN.

Weeds Rob Crops of Food and Much Needed Moisture.

If the weeds have flourished in your garden or in parts of it, mow them down. If they have not gone to seed they can be plowed under later to help out the stable manure you apply, but if they have they should be removed from the garden and thrown on the compost heap. Composting kills weed seed.

Weeds are expensive things to have in gardens or anywhere else; they rob garden crops of food and moisture, many of them are natural food for all kinds of insects, which, when they have devoured the choice parts of weeds, attack adjacent garden crops. Weeds may also support plant diseases that would otherwise die, and they induce mildews and rusts by reducing air and sunlight around the garden plants. These weeds are now going to seed and winter winds will jar that seed out, and the chances for a heavy stand of weeds next spring will be quite good.

Other good things to remove now, and as the later crops mature, are the crop remnants, especially if there has been disease or insect infestation. Dead stalks are wintering places for diseases and insects.

Stalks removed had best be burned, though if a compost pile is made the insect infested stalks may be thrown on it. Disease spores survive the composting temperature. Burning is safest.

PERSONALS.

Ontario Women.

Chatham, Ont.—“Some time ago I had a general breakdown. It terminated in quite a bad case. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was recommended to me by a friend who used it and received much benefit. I began taking it and in six months I was completely cured of my ailment and have never had any return of same. I can recommend this medicine as being good, if one will give it a fair trial.”—Mrs. JOHN ACKERT, 67 Edgar St., Chatham, Ont.

At the first symptoms of any derangement at any period of life the one safe really helpful remedy is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Thousands of women in Canada have taken it with unflinching success.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a true friend to women in times of trial. For headache, backache, hot flashes, mental depression, dizziness, fainting spells, lassitude and exhaustion, women should never fail to take this tried and true woman's medicine.

Prepared from nature's roots and herbs, it contains no alcohol or narcotic, nor any harmful ingredient. In either tablet or liquid form. Write Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., to-day for free medical advice.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets not only the original but the best Little Liver Pills, first put up over 40 years ago, by Dr. R. V. through the hot weather with the same efficiency and is able to keep up the pace without a waver for twenty-four hours at a stretch.”

While the gas engines are not working they are not eating their heads off, as the horses do, especially during the winter season, points out Mr. Sanders.

The farmer can now purchase an engine that is guaranteed by the manufacturers against imperfection of materials for a term of three years or more. Next year will put the small tractor to a severe test. The experiments will determine to a great extent its value on a small farm.

For Burning Stumps.

For burning the big stumps of fir and similar timber in the Pacific northwest two holes are bored so that they will intersect deep within the wood.

A one and a half inch auger is used in making the holes. The bark is skinned off between the two holes. Red hot coals are pushed down the holes to the intersection and the fire is started well within the stump. After the part marked "A" is burned out the fire is kept up by means of litter, bark and chunks.

BUILD THE SILO NOW.

Because it saves the whole crop, insures "June pasture" in winter, saves labor and storage space, doubles farm capacity for live stock, prevents waste in feeding, saves a frozen corn crop and makes better use of grain feed possible, build a silo.

The silo promises a safe place to store corn that is overtaken by frost when in the milk stage. The crop will then make a fairly good quality of silage if it is cut into the silo at once.

The silo furnishes succulent, palatable feed of uniform quality that is always near at hand.

The silo preserves the corn crop with the minimum amount of loss, as the entire plant is made fit for food.

The silo doubles the number of dairy or beef animals that can be kept on a farm.

The silo economizes space, time and building costs in providing storage room for the crop.

The silo equalizes the supply of feed by carrying a surplus over in good condition from one year to another.

The silo can be used for ensiling clover or alfalfa during a spell of wet weather, when it would be impossible to cure it for hay.

The silo furnishes the most economical, convenient feed for supplementing short pastures during a period of drought.—Better Farming.

and wheat middings. If they are not allowed field range they need about a 10 per cent addition of meat scraps in this mash. If skim milk is available it is excellent for moistening the mash, or it can be fed to them thick and sour. When it comes to close confinement in preparation for the market a mash of this kind should be given twice a day, with at least one feed of whole corn.

This class of poultry, or in fact any other kind, should be supplied with just such food as it will clean up quickly. The feeding troughs or pans ought to be cleaned every day. It is also part of the owner's duty to see that the smaller birds get their share of the food. In any flock there are fowls that bully the others, and to get uniformity it is sometimes necessary to have two or more pens for feeding. Not only is it necessary to feed regularly and abundantly, but the birds need to be quiet and comfortable. Excitement is bad for chickens in any stage of the poultry business. In the feeding of capons or other fowls clean water and grit should always be available.

While the owner of nearly every poultry plant can make it pay to handle a few capons for a select trade, I do not urge the adoption of this branch of business to the exclusion of the production of broilers. I am quite sure that when a poultry owner sets out for meat production he will make money easier by selling the young cockerels at two months than by carrying them over to maturity, but there may be a surplus of them, and in this case it is a good policy to caponize the birds and fit them for market at eight to ten months. Any fair sized poultry plant can make it profitable to produce the various kinds of meat that are required by critical buyers, as well as to supply fresh eggs to their customers. In connection with a study of what the best trade demands one must learn methods of economical and safe feeding. This is a problem that may be easily solved where there are a few acres of land on which to operate the poultry plant.

PLOWING DRY GROUND.

Farmers who expect to sow wheat this fall are considerably concerned over the matter of getting the necessary plowing done, says the Kansas Farmer. Very little plowing has as yet been done. The ground is too hard to plow without the use of an excessive amount of power. Even some farmers who have tractors have refrained from plowing because of the belief that working dry ground will injure it. While this may be the case in certain soils, it probably does not hold true in general. We note that the agricultural college authorities are advising farmers to put on more power, if necessary, and plow the ground now even if it is dry.

Ground prepared late does not produce as good yields as that worked early. When rains come the plowed fields will readily absorb the water. The heavy growth of weeds on many Kansas farms is sapping what little moisture the soil contains.

It is not advisable to plow deep at this late date. There is not time enough to let the seed bed properly settled if it is plowed deep.

RIBBON TRIMMINGS.

Ways of Using the New Fallals For Fall Modes.

As trimmings and the materials of which smart accessories are made of ribbons have risen to the top notch of prominence, there seems to be absolutely nothing which cannot be ribbon trimmed.

Ribbon "harnesses" are being shown for wear over a lace nightdress to make it more elaborate. They are put on separately and snapped in place. Similar harnesses are also being fashioned for wear under thin blouses. Such a harness makes a plain blouse much more elaborate and partly conceals a thin camisole which may be worn beneath it.

A strip of ribbon is sometimes introduced into the chain of a lavalliere where it comes in contact with the neck.

Strips of lace alternate with strips of ribbon to fashion many attractive negligees. Boudoir caps made of a skeleton of ribbons gathered into a knot of rosebuds at the top and held together at the bottom by rosebuds where they overlap are chic.

A classic negligee uses ribbon to offset the crossed Grecian lines from the shoulders to waist and to outline the full paned train which hangs from the shoulders in back.

Wide metallic and brocade ribbons are deep enough to form the bodice in some evening gowns. Soft faille and grosgrain ribbons in cockade effects with flying ends are used to hold up the draperies on evening frocks of soft materials. Again panniers will be simulated by plaitings of wide ribbon allowed to extend outright from the hips, or deep loops of two toned satin ribbon will serve to make pannier or bustle as successfully as the material.

Wide ribbons for muffs are being tied in many curious ways. Often a bow at the back of the neck makes a fetching finish. Where double ribbons are crossed jeweled slides like those used on watch chains are used to clasp the two strands together. Sometimes a tiny bunch of artificial flowers is tied in the length of the muff ribbon.

BEAUTIFUL FURNITURE.

A Treatise on Rare Old Pieces and What They Express.

Have you ever considered the educational value of the modern department store? Probably not, and yet it is one of the greatest educational factors of the age.

Take the Chippendale, for instance—it is tremendously popular. It is the first style that was ever identified with any individual name. Now a precedent is not established without power; therefore there is an obvious reason for the name Chippendale meaning so much, and you have only to look at the surpassing beauty of line and design of the Chippendale product to discover the reason. The Chinese Chippendale combines the beauty of line with that of color and of decoration. A most attractive dining room suit of this description is of battleship gray, with green brocade horsehair upholstery and artistic hand decorations done in silver and gold. The ornamental handles on the buffet drawers are of the appearance of oxidized silver.

Another noticeable artistic touch is the placing of a Chippendale chair in a severely colonial dining room or living room set. This is highly artistic; it takes away the stern note of severity and softens it to pleasing harmony. But, after all, the superbly elegant dining room is furnished in Chippendale.

Unkneaded Graham Bread.

Make a batter of half compressed yeast cake dissolved in a quarter of a cupful of warm water, three cupfuls of graham flour, a teaspoonful of salt. Cover and leave overnight. In the morning add a cupful of sugar and enough graham flour to make a batter so stiff it can be lifted with the hand. Butter pound size coffee cans thoroughly and fill half full, let rise until about three-quarters full and then bake an hour and a quarter in a slow oven. This makes three good loaves.

THE HIGH COST OF LIVING.

Steps Being Taken by Government to Relieve Situation.

The Government have under consideration a number of suggestions of means for relieving the situation created by the upward march of food prices. The best of these suggestions are to be embodied in an order-in-Council to be passed under the War Measures Act, regulations adopted in this way being immediately operative. In other words, by taking action under the powers conferred by the War Measures Act, it will be possible to afford relief at once, without waiting for a session of Parliament and the passing of new legislation.

In so far as the rise in food prices results from the natural operation of the law of supply and demand, there is little that the Government can do, but action is possible and, it is understood, will be taken, to prevent the inflation of prices by artificial means, such as the cornering of supplies and the storing of large stocks for speculative purposes.

The order-in-Council under which means of meeting this situation will be provided, has not been prepared. Its probable contents as outlined will be a set of machinery which will facilitate action by municipalities. For instance, there will be a clear definition of what is to constitute illegal manipulation of the food market, and there will be provided a direct method under which a municipality may proceed in case of a violation of the new regulations.

It is considered likely also the Government will establish a system of inspection, under which the amount of stock of various foodstuffs in the country may be checked up from time to time. This will operate effectively, it is believed, to prevent the hoarding up of food stocks by speculators. The Ministerial sub-committee appointed recently is considering the proposed regulations and an official announcement will be forthcoming very soon.

A Birthday Reminder.

For a child or even a grownup who is willing to be amused try this scheme for a birthday reminder. You may buy this little contrivance already made or you can try your own hand at fixing it up. It is nothing more than a round candy box painted to represent a birthday cake. Instead of candles, rolled bits of paper on which are written amusing mottoes or birthday wishes are thrust through holes in the box lid. There can be as many candles as you wish, unless the number is too great. For the mottoes use some of those to be found on birthday postcards, or, if you can, make your own. This idea could be carried out likewise for a birthday party, having the real cake in the middle and at each guest's plate a tiny round box painted with water colors to resemble a cake, with one rolled paper candle on which is written a "fortune."

Easy Rolls.

Boil one pint of fresh milk to make easy rolls. While hot put in one tablespoonful of lard, one and a half

one-half cake of compressed yeast, stir in flour for a very stiff sponge, then chop or work lightly and set to flour and let rise again. Then make out as many rolls as are wanted and put the remainder in a tight pan in a cool place until needed.

FOR OUTDOOR WOMEN.

Footwear That Is Modish and Leggins Too.

By all means use woolen stockings.
Get a shoe whose sole is at least as big as your stockinged foot when you put your weight on it. Get a heel as broad and low as you can comfortably walk with, and remember that walking on earth trails and leaf mold is infinitely easier on the nerves than walking on cement.

Have your shoe five to seven inches high; not lower, because rain and cold and mosquitoes have an affinity for unprotected ankles; not higher, because you add expense, weight and stuffy heat without gain. Leggins, if you want them, will protect the calf.
They should be of material resembling your skirt and knickerbockers.

Fashiongrams.

A frock launched forth for fall is made of beige cloth and velvet. Even the tiny ruffles on the skirt and sleeves are of velvet.

One couldn't help calling a hat military when it is made of khaki silk and trimmed with red ribbon in cartridge plaiting.

Two toned underwear is something of a novelty. The two shades, which are very pale, are interwoven in pink and blue, white and pale gray or primrose with powder blue.

On hats of felt are narrow hat bands of engraved leather.

A black satin skirt is part of a stunning afternoon costume. The other part is a white broadcloth coat having pockets, collar and cuffs of the satin.
A white felt hat trimmed with black satin gives the finishing touch.

Sweeping Carpets.

Wet your brooms with boiling suds once a week and they will become tough and last much longer. When sweeping, sprinkle a handful of salt on the carpet to carry the dust along; it will make the carpet brighter. Wet newspapers, wrung nearly dry and torn into bits, are also good dust collectors when sweeping. Tea leaves are good to sprinkle on all but very delicate carpets.

Hash In Peppers.

Cut the tops off from three green peppers and soak them in cold water while preparing the filling. Mix one cupful of chopped cold meat and one-half cupful of chopped potatoes and season with celery salt. Drain the peppers and fill with the hash mixture.
Bake in a hot oven about twenty minutes.

Fish for the Soldiers.

The allied armies as well as a considerable proportion of the civilian population of Great Britain are now looking to Canada for a steady supply of fish diet to make up for meat scarcity and to offset high prices for meats. Recently the Minister of Militia received from England a request to put through an order for one million and a half pounds of fresh frozen fish for the British soldiers.
Canadian soldiers in England have been receiving a weekly ration of Canadian fish for some months past.
Arrangements have now been made to supply Canadians in the trenches with a fish ration, and specially prepared tins are being sent forward.
The British authorities have been impressed with the cheapness and desirability of a fish ration, and want a similar supply for the British troops. There is, too, a gradually increasing demand from civilians for Canadian fish. Italy and France are also beginning to look to the Canadian supply.

Sir Sam Hughes said that exports of Canadian fish to the allied countries would eventually total five million pounds per week. When in England last August Sir Sam took up with the British authorities the question of a fish ration for British troops, and urged that orders be placed in Canada through the Canadian War Purchase Commission. A few days ago a big order was received. Major Hugh Green of Prince Albert, whom Sir Sam sent over to England last winter to start the habitations for the Canadian troops, is also looking after the popularization of the general use of Canadian fish in Great Britain.

McFARLANE—WADDINGHAM.

On Wednesday, Nov. 22nd, 1916,
the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm.
Waddingham, Lonsdale, was the scene of a very pretty event when their only daughter, Gladys Irene, was united in marriage with Mr.
Root, McFarlane, of Marysville. At the hour of eleven o'clock, in the presence of about forty guests, during the playing, of the wedding march by Miss Hazel Milburn, the bride, who presented a most charming appearance gowned in maize silk crepe de chene and carrying crimson roses, entered the parlor and took her place under a beautiful arch of evergreen and white. Miss Francis McFarlane, in her usual winsome manner, and dressed in white satin de chene, assisted the bride, and Mr.
Ernest Waddingham ably supported the groom. Mrs. John Kent, sister of Mr. McFarlane, attired in copenhagen silk, acted as matron of honor, while little Miss McCullough gracefully completed the wedding group by bearing the ring. After the ceremony which was performed by the bride's pastor, the Rev. E. B. Cooke, the guests sat down to a sumptuous wedding repast in the dining room, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion with flowers and streamers of green and white. The groom's gift to the bride was a chain and handsome diamond and pearl set pendant, and also a chain and pendant to the bridesmaid. To the groomsman a gold stick pin and to the pianist a pearl set brooch.
Amid a shower of rice and confetti the happy couple left by auto for Belleville, where they took the train for Toronto and other points west.
The bride's going away suit was of navy taffeta, with ivory, Georgette blouse and black baby lamb coat.
Upon their return they will take up their residence near Marysville. Their many friends join in wishing them a long and happy life.
